Your Child's Education . . .

Since knowledge is power, there is every reason for you to see that your children get the best education possible. We must realize that a well-rounded education consists of schooling and experience in life. The right training for your own child is most important. Since they won't all follow the same paths along the road of life, their individual needs must be taken into consideration. Encourage your child but don't force him or her beyond their own capabilities. We have had a world of experience in our field and therefore want you to feel confident when bringing your prescriptions here. . . Harmon's Retail Pharmacy, The Dispensary on the Corner, 101 N.
