of food donated to cooperating counties by the U. S. Department of Agriculture says there has been "definite improvement."

Concrete efforts have been made, he says, to reach persons in need of food assistance by the N. C. Department of Agriculture working with USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. As a result, 30,000 more persons in North Carolina are receiving food now than a year earlier. He also says that the amount of food distributed to each person has increased - rising from around 20 pounds to nearly 35 pounds per month - and that a greater variety of food is now available.

New public concern about the malnutrition problem has given rise to questions on whether donated foods are sufficiently nutritious, familiar to persons using them, and easy to prepare.

Says Jay P. Davis who directs the N. C. Department of Agriculture's distribution efforts, "All the foods must meet high stan-dards of quality and sanitation, and if properly used they will provide 100 percent of a family's daily nutritional needs,'

He adds, "Many foods are more enriched than similar items on the regular retail market shelf.

This is what is offered: Dry beans, butter, cheese, corn meal, scrambled egg mix, flour, canne whole chicken, grits, lard, canned chopped meat, evaporated milk, nonfat dry milk, rolled oats, peanut butter, canned vegetables, instant potatoes, rice, corn syrup, juice and rolled wheat.

Davis' division works with boards of county commissioners in providing transportation, personnel for handling foods, and facilities for storage and distribution. This year it is estimated NCDA's services will cost around $629 thousand while it is expected that food donated by the Federal government will be worth nearly $27 million.

Nutrition education is another aspect of the work being done in North Carolina to help low-income families with their food needs. County distribution cen-

Apart from the program to feed low-income families, but complementing it, is the program to provide food to school children.

All school cafeterias in North Carolina are given USDA foods which they supplement by purchasing additional foods from local merchants. During the last fiscal year, the N. C. Department of Agriculture distributed more than 42 million pounds of food to Tar Heel schools with an estimated wholesale value of over $13 million.

Also, a special food service program for pre-school youngsters has just recently been established. Authorized by a 1968 amendment to the National School Lunch Act, the 3-year program will mean better nutrition for children attending public and nonprofit private institutions in North Carolina and other south-

Soybeans supplies for the 190869 marketing year are placed at a record 1-1/4 billion bushels, 17 percent more than last year. The expansion in soybean utilisation has been slowing in the last two marketing years. Only a slight gain is expected this year from the 900 million bushel lavet of 1967-68. Prospective use indicates the scybean carryover atooks at the end of the current marketing year next september 1 probably will exceed 500 million bushels compared with 197 million a year earlier. Most of the curryover limity will end up in government stocks at a cost of well over last a billion dollars.

Denmark Lady To Speak At Rotary

Miss Solvier Screnson from enmark who is doing under-raduate work at Weeelyon Col-age in Rocky Mount will be guest ment of Community Health Sciences, Dr. Harvey Bates, Chairman, Duke University; and Mr. William Henderson, Executive Secretary of the N. C. Medical Care Commission, Raleigh, N. C.

Our problems have been discussed with them and with each of these, however, we believe that our situation could be more accurately diagnosed by an "on the spot" review of our problems and by so doing arrive at a more comprehensive solution to an ever-increasing medical practice dilemma.

I, therefore, as chairman of the Pergulmans County Board of Commissioners, extend to you and your groups a most urgent invitation to visit our area at the earliest possible moment to help us work out or at least start a plan of rural medical practice that will fit and fulfill our present as well as future medical practice needs,
