LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,
When I go to school games with a group of girls we usually get a hamburger afterwards. Not long ago the game was held up a while and did not finish as early as usual. It was after twelve when I got home and I am supposed to be there at eleven. Now I am being punished for not getting home on time. Don't you think this is unfair?
Dolly-Pa.

Answer:
Did you telephone your parents after the game and get permission to stay out later? If not you should have by-passed the hamburger and gone home as soon as the game was over. There are so many awful things that can happen to young girls who are out, unescorted, at night that parents should have a definite time for their daughters to be in and, in case, they are not, find out where they are or if anything bad has happened to them. This rule is for your protection and later on you will probably be very glad that your parents love you enough and are concerned enough about your welfare to have these rules.

How would you like to have parents - such as those one girl writes about - who are never home to know or care where she is or when she comes home?
Louisa

THE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT

THE LOST MAN

In "The Lost Man," the writer, Robert Alan Arthur, attempts to show through Sidney Poitier's acting the causes of black militancy.

The story includes a section of Philadelphia's slum area where Poitier portrays a cool militant leader. He falls in a payroll holdup and goes into hiding that is typical of slum areas.

Joanna Skimius portrays a white social worker who goes into the slum area and is able to help Poitier. A young beautician also plays an important part in this movie.

We hear that Lassie, Gentle Ben the Bear, Clarence the Cross Eyed Lion and friends plan to form a union.

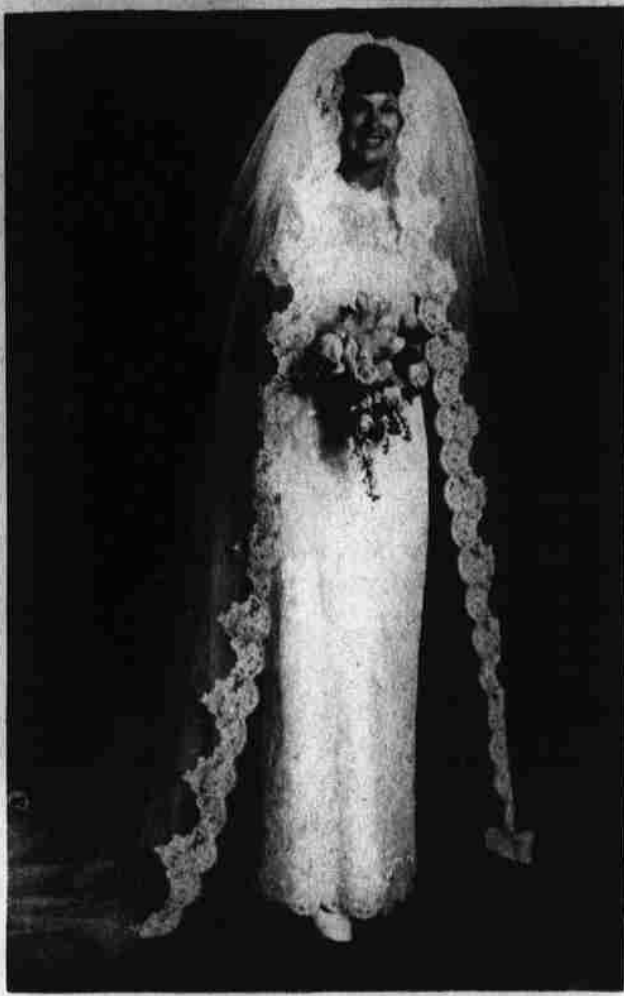

A recent New York law has been used to deny Jackie Gleason the right to file divorce proceedings against his wife. The Gleasons have been legally separated for fifteen years.

Trained
A visitor to a large factory told the manager he could pick out all the married men among the employees. He stationed himself at the door, and as the men came from dinner he pointed to those he thought were married. In almost every case he was right.

"How do you do it?" asked the amazed manager.
"Oh, it's quite simple," replied the traveler. "The married men all wipe their feet on the mat. The single men don't."

The name Milwaukee was derived from an Indian word meaning "good earth."

DelMickey-Tune Vows Spoken In Arizona

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line floor-length gown of white marquisette re-embroidered with Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her full-length mantilla of imported English silk illusion was attached to a face-framing tiara of Alencon lace and seed pearls. She carried a nosegay of white sweetheart roses, baby's breath, miniature white carnations, miniature try, and white streamers with love knots of stephanotis. Miss Debra Jeanne Mickey, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a floor-length A-line gown of mauve silk fibran with an Empire waist and a ruffled neckline. She carried a nosegay of blue bachelor buttons, lavender daisy pom-pom mums, baby's breath and leather fern. Matching flowers formed a wreath-like headpiece.

Other bridal attendants were Mrs. Robert Boshara, Mrs. Thomas Melsamer, and Miss Judith Anne Olsen all of Tucson, and Miss Debor Sears Coyle of Darien, Connecticut. Their dresses and flowers were identical to those of the honor attendant.

William Orrin Tune, Jr., twin brother of the groom, was the best man. Groomsmen were Capt. William C. Thompson, Jr. of Chatham, Va., Eugene E. Kelly of Arlington, Va., Kevin E. Glynn of Kansas City, Missouri, and Frederick R. Green of Kew Gardens, N. Y.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length heavy silk gown of pale aqua with a fitted waist and tiny button trim. Her corsage was green cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the Terrace Room of Skyline Country Club.

After a wedding trip through Southern California, Mr. and Mrs. Tune will enroll for graduate work at Stanford University in Palo Alto, California.

The bride is the daughter of the former Frances White and the great-granddaughter of Mrs. C. O. White of Hertford.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

During summer there is, annually, an outcropping of intestinal upsets, usually characterized by nausea, vomiting and diarrhea.

These "summer diarrheas" are frequent occurrences in the hot weather because of inadequacies in food preservation. Much care should be taken in the preparation of foods which could harbor common harmful bacteria.

As an illustration, sporadic epidemics of so-called food poisoning are often brought to our attention dramatically where a large number of people have eaten from the same kitchen.

A great deal of pain, prostration and panic usually results among those involved. Investigative procedures following an episode of this nature usually show one of the foods to be contaminated by a type of bacteria that could have been avoided by adequate preservation and preparation.

A minute number of these common bacteria are normally found in most foods. When given an opportunity to multiply through a delayed period of growth in abnormally elevated temperatures, not suitable for food storage, thus resulting increased proportion of bacteria presents a hazard.

Proper refrigeration is most important in summer for meats, pastries, custards, dairy products, and some other foods. And care should be observed in the storage of foods after cooking - as well as before!

As the pace quickens to get the most out of the remaining summer weeks, all picnickers are urged to be extra careful in the preparation and preservation of food before and after the picnic lunch.

By all means, home remedies should be avoided in cases of acute food poisoning.
