Social Security Administration

Q. I get my summer social security checks because I am a school teacher and don't work during the summer. How do I stop my checks now that I will start back to work this coming school year?

A. Call, write or visit your local social security office and have them complete a return-to-work postcard form.

Q. I'm a school teacher. I'll have to work the last week in August. I get summer checks since I'm a widow over 60 years old. Some days in August are "training" days, some are "teaching" days. Can I get my check for August?

A. If you don't earn over $140 in August you get to keep your September 3rd check for August. Remember teacher training days and class days are all work days, so you better check your total earnings for August closely. If it's over $140, no check!

Q. I was going to return to teaching for another year in September 1969, but now I've made up my mind to retire. I reported that I wasn't working only for my summer checks. What should I do about social security?

A. Tell your local social security office of your new plans. They'll help you with the report that has to be made to keep your checks coming.

Q. I'm a teacher over 62 years old. Is it too late to claim checks for the past summer when I wasn't working? Would I be better off financially to wait till I'm 65?

A. A claim is retroactive for 12 months. Ask your nearest office to advise you as to the exact amounts payable - Generally, you're ahead until age 77 by taking a check before you're 65. If you live past your 77th birthday, you would be ahead by waiting to age 65 to apply for social security checks.
