THE

While it is most encouraging that over 200,000 Americans are being saved from cancer each year, there are, however, half as many again who will succumb to the disease because they did not get to their doctor in time of the American Cancer Society said

It is still "very difficult" to stect some forms of cancer it is reported that 60 per cent of cancers in women and 40 all per cent all cancers in men decan be easily examined And elop in areas of the body that these most common forms of the disease usually can be treated effectively if caught in time. By making a practice of see-ing your detor every year for a thorough health checkup no matter how well you feel, you will be in a position to receive prompt treatment if cance should be discovered. A knowledge of cancer's seven warning signals, coupled with regu-lar checkups, should enable many people to be saved from cancer

if it should appear. Despite the all-out attempts of the American Cancer society to educate the public to the value of regular physical checkups some 57 per cent of the population avoids this simple health precaution.

Why, if a person's health even life - is at stake, do a majority of our citizens refrain fom these simple, life-saving checkups? It is suggested that an answer to this question would be to point to a recent nationwide Cancer Society survey which revealed that the key reason most people did not go for checkup that they Wielt healthy." Some 10 per cent did not go because they "had no concern over chancer." Around 8 per cent did not go because their doctor had not suggested it. Surprisingly enough money, or the lack of it seemed to bother only 4 per cent, while 2 per cent claimed they had 'no time'. Another 2 per cent confessed they were "afraid to go."

The survey also revealed that in the group of those who went regularly for checkups, women led the men by some 40 per cent to 13 per cent. The age group most interested in their personal

District Health Board Warns Commissioners

The District Board of Health told County Commissioners of Perquimans, Pasquotank, Camden and Chowan counties that the state must be notified by November, regarding financial participation by the counties. They added that if there is not enough participation, they would withhold money from the area and the services of the Health Department would be in question. Chamber of Commerce President Bill Cox has suggested that the people of the county notify amissioners representing the them of their feelings on the matter. Continued support of the county will require another $600 and Perquimans commissioners will discuss the matter at their Monday meeting. Since this county is without a doctor, the Chamber's Board of Directors voted a couple of months ago to support the Health Department's request. Now they would like to know how the people feel and they want the people to let their representatives know how they feel. To do this call a commissioner and let him know whether or not you support continued support of the Health Department. Commission Chairman R. L Spivey's phone number is 338-

Perquimans Group On Open House

A committee has been formed to coordinate plans for a local delegation to attend an annual Open House program Nov. 8 at North Carolina State University in Raleigh. R. M. Thompson is chairman of the Perquimans County committee. He said the Open House program will be presented by the university's School of Agriculture and Life Sciences and School of Forest Resources.

The committee will assist local people who want to attend the event.

Open House, which drew an es-timated 4,000 people to the Raleigh campus last year, is held for high school students and their school advisors who would like to learn about hundreds of career in agriculture, for estry and the biological sciences. Also invited are other adults who are interested in finding out more about the statewide activities of N. C. State through its research and extension programs, Special exhibits designed around the theme, "Careers-2001," will be opened to the public beginning at 9 a.m. in Reynolds Coliseum, Faculty mem-bers and students will be on hand to greet visitors and answer questions.

5317: Ellis Winslow can be reached at 426-7384. If a commissioner can reached during the day, try again during the evening hours. Remember, Monday is the day your representatives decide whether or not to support the Health Department. Today is the day you should let them know how you feel.

Chamber Presents Check To Restoration Association

The budget, the Restoration Association and the local option sales tax were the trio of items that occupied the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce at the October meeting. Since the Restoration Association will have no funds to work with until they are able to conduct a membership drive, the Chamber presented them with a check for $100 and told them that if more were needed, to make a request.

The check was presented by Chamber President Bill Cox to Rev. Edwin Williams, chairman of the association. Not only did the Chamber sponsor the association and get it going, but it will continue to support it financially if necessary and in any
