Carolyn Gay Howell Enrolls In Workshop

This summer at East Carolina University, fourteen teachers of high school home economics are undergoing a radical change in role: Every morning some are found sitting on the floor reading stories to preschool children, and others, clad in white uniforms and aprons, cook food in quantity and serve it to a roomful of diners.

Though it may appear that these women are "moonlighting" in nursery schools and restaurants, such activities are actually part of course requirements for a three-week workshop. "Occupational Programs in Home Economics," whose purpose is to prepare them to conduct occupational training programs in their respective high schools. Carolyn Gay Howell has enrolled from Perquimans.

According to Dr. Vila Rosenfeld, chairman of home economics education in the ECU School of Home Economics, this summer workshop is fulfilling a vital need in education. Home economics is no longer a matter of simply learning to cook and sew for a household; it is an essential component in the recent emphasis upon vocational education.

An attractive blonde whose intense dedication to her field is immediately apparent, Dr. Rosenfeld is enthusiastic about the ECU program for teachers. "Occupational aspects of home economics is quite a new idea," she says, "and most home economics teachers in the public schools have not been oriented to this idea. The teachers in our workshop have been having new experiences related to the concept of occupational training and learning how to set up these programs for their schools."

10% Increase Is Reported In Benefits For Veterans

The Veterans Administration reported nearly 81,000 children will receive a 10 per cent increase in benefits under a new law, which also enlarges the definition of "children" for purposes of veterans benefits.

W.R. Phillips, Director of the Winston-Salem VA Regional Office, said these benefits, which become effective July 1, 1970, will amount to about $3.6 million the first year.

The new law makes the adopted child of a veteran (for benefit purposes) a dependent from the date an interlocutory (intermediate) decree is filed, rather than the date it becomes final.

Phillips said the law covers payments (dependency and indemnity compensation - DIC) to widows, certain children, and parents of veterans and servicemen, if death of the veteran or serviceman was caused by a service-connected disease or injury.

He said the law provides DIC to children (where there is no widow entitled) at increased monthly rates of $88 for one child, $127 for two children, $184 for three children, with an extra $32 added to this rate for each child in excess of three.

Monthly supplementary DIC payments are raised from $39 to $53 for children under 18 who are permanently disabled and are capable of self-support. Benefits for children above 18 will be increased from $80 to $88 monthly.

Phillips added that if the child is a student 18 to 23 years of age (and the widow or mother is entitled to DIC), the payment will be increased from $41 to $49 monthly.
