FIRST CLASS RECOGNITION POMPANO BEACH, Fla.

(AP) - When Frank Ward and his bride Add stopped off here at the end of their honeymoon one of the first to greet them was Ted Williams, manager of the Washington Senators. Ward, a former Brown University pitcher, had spent some time years ago at Williams' summer camp. Ward, a former Boston Park League pitcher, is now the property of the Kansas City Royals and was on his way to Daytona Beach for spring training. Williams saw the 6-foot-2 right handed hurler in the stands here and recognized him immediately.

Ward, who is from Rehoboth, Mass., set a New York-Penn League strikeout record when he pitched for the Corning Royals in 1968. He fanned 16 Oneonta batters in a 2-1 victory. Hog Cholera Outbreak East Of Winfall

An outbreak of Hog Cholera east of Winfall has added to the Quarantine already in effect in Perquimans County. There is no doubt in any one's mind that this is the worst epidemic of Hog Cholera in this county and area in many years. There is only one way to stop this epidemic and that is for each and every owner of hogs to be as careful as he possibly can. This care includes limiting the traffic in your hog lots, stay out of neighboring hog lots, disinfect your feet before entering your hog lots, keep a foot bath available and most important of all - USE IT!! By doing these things, you can help stop this epidemic. A lot of people have asked this question "How can we stop Hog Cholera?" The answer lies with each and every hog grower in Perquimans County, North Carolina and the United States. You must want to see this disease eradicated and cooperate fully with the Hog Movement Regulations. Until every farmer who grows hogs gives his full cooperation, we will be a long time stopping Cholera, stated Richard Elyant, County Extension Chairman.

All existing quarantines remain in effect.
