Falling Temperatures Mean Rising Cow Costs
The wintertime costs of maintaining a cow heard goes up as the thermometer mercury goes down. It takes a sharp manager to keep these cold season costs from eating into annual profits. Feed and feeding are the big reason costs go up in wintertime, according to A. V. Allen, specialist in charge of extension animal husbandry at North Carolina State University. "The main reason winter is more expensive," Allen said, "is that in most areas pasture is cheaper than silages, grain or hay. Also, cows gather the pasture themselves while most winter feeding requires some daily labor." Some cattlemen get around some of these labor costs by self-feeding silage from a trench or bunker silo. Allen isn't so sure this is the best way to handle it. "We must remember that a thousand pound cow will eat 75 to 80 pounds of silage a day if allowed to have all she wants," he said. "She doesn't need this much. We believe 50 to 60 pounds is ample to take care of her needs." What the farmer has to decide is whether he can produce the extra 20 to 25 pounds of silage cheaper than he can ration it out to the cow. Another way to cut labor costs is by having large capacity hay racks that only have to be filled two or three times a week. Also, grain and protein can be limited and self-fed by mixing with salt or fat. "But I prefer hand feeding to self-feeding," said Allen. "First, it makes more economical use of feed. But even more important, it allows the farmer to see his animals daily." "He needs to watch them closely for such things as calving problems, sickness and other troubles that he might miss if he didn't feed them daily." Allen added, "Un less labor is

Here are some other suggestions from Allen: -To be assured that each cow gets her share, spread the feed out so that all animals can eat at the same time. -If space is available, separate the young heifers with their first calf and the replacement heifers with no calf from the older cows. Feed these a little higher quality roughage and a few extra pounds of some kind of grain to get them off to a good start. -The last month or six weeks is the most critical part of the winter. The cows should be nursing two to three-month-old calves by then and need to be in top physical condition. This means feeding and the best quality feed available. Feed poorest quality early and save the best to last. The NCSU specialist added a word of comfort for those who concern themselves over "those poor critters" standing out in the bitter cold. "Mother Nature provides for them pretty well," he said. "They tend to put on a layer of fat next to the skin for insulation. Also, the dead hair does not shed from the haircoat but tends to mat with new hair to form another layer of insulation. Wind and snow aren't too uncomfortable for cattle. They feel it most in a cold, driving rain. But as a general rule, if they are well fed and can get to a grove of trees for a little protection, they'll be all right."

Letter To Editor
24 Nov. 70
Vietnam
Mrs. Virginia White Transeau, Editor
Perquimans Weekly
Hertford, N.C. 27944
Dear Mrs. Transeau,
I take pride and opportunity to send you my personal greetings from Vietnam. I'm well and hope this letter will find you and your staff the same. Give my regards to Hertford.
First of all I'll identify myself to you. Militarily my name is Sgt. George E. White, 24 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry White, 315 Stokes Dr., Hertford, N.C. I've been in Service for approximately 5-1/2 years. I attended school at Winfall, N.C. and graduated from there in June 1965. You might know my parents, but I don't think you know me.
Secondly, I'm a Defender of Freedom throughout the world and protection of Free Men. The main reason I'm writing is to ask you would you send me the Perquimans Weekly over here. Even though I'm far from home I'd love to read about my dearest hometown. If it's possible I'd like for you to do this for me and I'll highly appreciate it.
As the Code of Conduct states, I'm an American Fighting Man and I serve in the Forces that guard my Home, Nation and its way of life.
May God Ever Bless you while we're absent one from another. By the way, this is my second Tour of Duty here. Please let me hear from you soon.

Sincerely,
George E. White, Sgt. FA

Card Of Thanks
The family of Mrs. Lizzie Chappell wishes to express our sincere appreciation to relatives, neighbors and friends, who by their visits, cards, flowers and prayers made our mother's stay in the hospital so much easier. To Dr. Bond and the nurses who strived so hard to make her comfortable in her illness, we are most grateful. To the many people who sent food, gave flowers and sent messages of sympathy during the illness and death of our loved one we can only say "thanks".
May God richly bless you all.
J. O. Chappell and children.

Taking A Breather

A fun-filled scene will soon be everywhere. Perky, bright colors against sparkling snow are already decorating the store windows throughout North Carolina. Elaborate icicles and enormous trees glittering with lights fill the fancy department stores. And cheerful tots are browsing through the toy shops, thinking about and asking Santa Claus for that special gift. But what about the poor kid in the ghetto who can only wish for and dream about his special gift, which he knows will probably not come for many years. Giving baskets to the poor was once a Christmas custom. But today, seemingly, nobody wants to give - and some don't want to get - that kind of charity. And yet, the problems of the poor are still crippling. Poor families, for instance, have three times more disabling heart disease than more affluent families... seven times more visual impairment... five times more mental illness. And the killer diseases of the poor are the same today as they were decades ago. Tuberculosis, pneumonia, influenza. And why? Because inadequate diet, crowded housing conditions, and poor general health make people much more liable to have TB and other germs invade their lungs. There are more than 32 million Americans who are poor. Being poor means more than a lack of money, although that is crucial. It means having a deficient education and too little training for a good job. It means no fast access to decent medical care and solid legal advice. Being poor means being shut out. Baskets will not solve the problems. But opening doors - to better jobs, better housing, better medical care - will help a lot. If better medical care were provided, TB would not be a killer of poor people. Outbreaks of TB can be controlled, even prevented. But annual check-ups are an important way to detect the presence of TB germs, and many people simply cannot afford the doctor's check-up fee yearly. The struggle against respiratory disease is going on at your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association, supported exclusively in North Carolina through the annual Christmas Seal campaign. If you haven't already done so, answer your Christmas Seal letter today. It's a matter of life and breath.

Know THE Weather

What is corpuscular radiation? Does it affect the earth's weather to any significant degree? Corpuscular radiation is, in the simplest form, a sort of electric current. It takes the form of charged particles which come into the earth's atmosphere from the sun. It is, then, a radiation from the sun. Corpuscular radiation plays a major role in determining the earth's weather, according to many able meteorologists. It has the effect, when in an abundance, to heat the polar regions, as apart from the equatorial regions. This produces extreme contrasts in the weather within short distances but generally make for warmer, drier weather.

Washington Report

Included in House action last week was approval of a bill regarding Federal Policy concerning Architectural Engineering and Related Services. An amendment was adopted that included the Department of Defense. Many of us felt this legislation was necessary to the operation of government due to the evidence presented that all too frequently contractors would subcontract parts of their work to unqualified firms with the taxpayers getting a second rate job in construction and other contracts. Armed Services Committee Chairman Mendel Rivers of South Carolina presented specific examples of this abuse and offered an amendment which would include the Department of Defense which the House adopted. Another bill approved by the House was entitled the Agricultural Marketing

Agreement and Promotion Act on certain farm commodities. Included in this bill was authority for the Irish potato producers of this nation to conduct a referendum to impose upon themselves a one cent per hundred weight assessment for the purpose of research and promotion. This will apply only to those producing five acres or more, and the plan must be approved by a 2/3 vote of the producers involved. It provides that any producer who does not wish to participate in the program can request and will receive a refund of all money deducted. The House also considered the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970. The committee bill considered by the House authorized funds for HUD through fiscal year 1974. This total authorization was in excess of $7 billion. It also provided wide latitude for Federal agencies to go into the field of insuring business and residential property.

A substitute was offered by Congressman Stephens of Georgia which was adopted by the House and which reduced the total authorization from $7 billion to 42.8 billion by providing for HUD programs only through fiscal year 1972. The substitute bill also restricted government operation in the insurance field, confining this activity to only that of "crime insurance." I interpret this as in areas where riots and a high percentage of crime exists, and where the private insurance companies are reluctant to offer coverage, HUD will be authorized to write insurance. It now appears that Congress cannot possibly adjourn before December 19.
