membership drive - it gave a vote of confidence to 1st District Highway Commissioner Joe Nowell - it publicized and promoted the ground breaking ceremonies for the New Don Juan plant - the same for the Governor's Award - it worked with the Industrial Development Commission - it helped promote sales projects - it continued to act as agent for the license bureau.

It helped the county receive a great amount of publicity by its sponsorship of Sybil Jean Bateman in the North Carolina Miss Teen-Age America pageant. The publicity was in many newspapers, on radio and on two television stations.

In initiated not one, not two - but three ribbon-cutting ceremonies (a sure sign of progress) for the Webb Car Wash, new Super Dollar Store and Phillips Brothers Furniture.

And there are the many 'routine' jobs the Chamber handles. Every piece of correspondence, much from potential residents and-or tourists - is answered individually; requests from school children for information about the county is answered; many phone calls are handled; inquiries from a variety of organizations are taken care of.

New brochures were made up this year and distribution on them has begun. They're attention-getters, and should be, because they're very important to the county.

Oh yes - there's one more job: Explaining to the small minority of skeptics what we do.

Pretty, blonde Leigh lives in Raleigh with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Tillery, and two sisters. She suffered a cervical cord injury at birth and symbolizes the quarter of a million children born every year with birth defects in this country. The March of Dimes supports research and medical service programs aimed at prevention and treatment of birth defects. North Carolina Chapters support a Birth Defects Treatment Center at Chapel Hill; a toll free public health education Storkline; and a variety of local programs.

The Tillerys are active volunteers in the March of Dimes appeal. Mr. Tillery is employed by the Governor's Highway Safety Program.

The Halifax and Wake County Chapters of the March of Dimes have assisted the family with some of the medical expenses involved in Leigh's treatment.
