Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of warm white chiffon and peau d'ange lace, fashioned with an empire waist and full A line skirt. The bodice was designed with long sleeves ending in wedding points, and scooped neckline accented with lace. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was arranged from a circle of daisies. She carried a cascade of white bride's roses. Miss Cynthia Norman, a classmate of the bride was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of sky blue taffeta accented with a sash and bow, bishop sleeves and empire waistline. Her headdress was a matching taffeta bow. She carried a cascade of blue forgetmenots, and white mums. Brides maids were sisters of the bride. Acquisition!
A young stenographer, unmarried, caused a number of raised eyebrows at the office one day when she began passing out cigars and cards tied with little blue ribbons. "Say, what's the occasion?" one of her fellow workers finally asked. "It's a boy," the girl announced proudly, displaying a small diamond on her left hand. "Six feet tall, weighs 178 pounds."
