Three 4-H Youths of the Wynn Fork 4-H Club presented a cookie demonstration showing the ingredients, equipment and preparation of "Sugar Crisp Cookies", at their regular meeting on Monday, March 20, 1972 at the Hertford Grammar School. The team consisted of Joanne Meads, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Meads, Lynn Hurdle, daughter of Mrs. Betty Hurdle, and Yvonne Keeter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Baker.

Earline White, Nutrition Aide and leader of the group states that the girls created much interest and enthusiasm as they gave their educational demonstration. A small oven constructed from a cardboard box was used to show proper setting of temperature and timing, while Joanne and Yvonne prepared cookie mixture.

Art Lane, President, presided over the meeting with Susan Rogerson giving the devotion, which was followed by "The Lord's Prayer". The Pledges to the American and 4-H Flags were said. The roll was called with 29 members present. With no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

Refreshments were served by our hostess, Paige Elliott.

Recipes For Fondue Dishes Are

Burgeoning

Recipes for fondue dishes are burgeoning. This type of tabletop cooking, in which most preparation and cleanup can be done ahead, allows the hostess to spend more time with her guests and yet provide a delectable meal, cocktail accompaniment or dessert, states Mrs. Paige Underwood, Home Economics Agent, who has been demonstrating Fondue at the March Homemakers clubs.

There are several types of fondue pots—some suitable only for dips and dessert sauces while others can be used for everything including hot oil cooking. Each unit includes a pot, stand and burner for cooking or keeping the mixture hot.

There are three basic types: metal cooker, ceramic pots and dessert pots—the latter being small with a candle used as the heat source. Metal is the most versatile and best suited for hot oil cooking. Some are plain and others have bright colored enamel finishes. Ceramic, pottery or earthenware pots are attractively decorated and adequate for cheese and other sauce-type fondues.

Alcohol and canned cooking fuel are the most common cooking heat sources and most burners provide some means of regulating the amount of heat released. Manufacturer's instructions for safe use of these fuels should be followed carefully.

An electric fondue pot takes much of the guesswork out of cooking fondue to perfection and keeping it at the right temperature for dipping. Thermostatic controls and non-stick surfaces also mean easier cleanups—though a brown crust may form at the bottom and sides. This is a desirable taste treat.

Before using a pot the first time, and occasionally thereafter, cooking surfaces should be "seasoned" by rubbing lightly with cooking oil or shortening. For regular cleaning, allow the pot to cool first, then thoroughly wash the inside and out with hot suds and rinse. If the interior is Teflon, do not use an abrasive cleaner since this may scratch the finish. It is better to soak the piece if necessary in hot sudsy water. Then scrub with a plastic sponge.

The heating base and temperature section of an electrical unit should not be immersed in water. Rather, unplug the cord, allow the pot to cool, remove the temperature control if possible, and then clean the base with a sudsy sponge.
