Support Of Public Schools Increase

North Carolina spent a total of $682.81 per pupil for public education during 1970-71, an increase of $74.52 over a year ago.

The total 1970-71 expenditure for current operating expenses for public schools was $725,349,611.55. Of this amount, 67.9 per cent was provided by the State, 14.7 per cent came from federal sources, and the remaining 17.4 per cent came from local sources.

In Perquimans, a total of $1,435,012.28 was spent for current expenditures, with $291,540.62 coming from the federal government, $964,160.08 from the state, and $179,311.58 from local sources. The total per pupil expenditure in Perquimans was $705.57.

The figures were released today by the State Department of Public Instruction. The Department cautioned that because of differences in transportation, heating, administration and other costs, the average figures should not be used in any way to assess the efficiency or effectiveness of the local unit.

Funds disbursed under the Head Start, National Youth Corps, Work Study, Follow-Through, Adult Education, and Summer School programs have been excluded from the report.

The breakdown of the $682.81 state-wide per pupil expenditure reveals that $18.87 went for administration; $459.37 was spent on instructional services; $32.91 went for operation of plant, $20.69 was for maintenance of plant, $67.85 was for fixed charges, and $63.12 was spent on auxiliary services.

In per cent of total expenditures, state sources range from a high of 80.8 per cent to a low of 58.1 per cent, federal sources range from a high of 31.7 per cent to a low of 6 per cent, and local sources range from a high of 35.1 per cent to a low of 3.4 per cent.

Anne H. Simpson Enrolls In Special Studies Project

A Hertford student, Anne Harris Simpson, is enrolled in a special May Term group studies project, Water Safety Instruction, at North Carolina Wesleyan College. Wesleyan's May Term, the concluding 4-week term of the academic year, is devoted to concentrated study in a single subject.

This special project is one of approximately 135 student-designed individual and group study projects highlighting the first May Term under Wesleyan's new Three-Track Curriculum, which was adopted in January 1972. Although numerous projects are campus-based, many students will study off-campus in a variety of locations ranging from the U.S. Senate to mental hospitals and churches.

N.C. Wesleyan is a coeducational, Methodist-related senior liberal arts college which is taking an innovative approach to learning with its implementation of a Three-Track Curriculum. This offers students a larger voice in planning their educations, and an opportunity to become involved in non-classroom courses.

Attend Bankers Association Meet

Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Stevenson attended the 76th annual convention of the North Carolina Bankers Association held in Pinehurst, May 11 through 13.

Two Local Students Receive College Degrees

North Carolina State University awarded degrees to some 2,600 men and women Saturday for mastering studies ranging from the sciences and technologies to the arts and humanities.

In the record-setting class were two graduates from Perquimans County.

Sheldon O. Bateman Jr., computer science, son of Mr. and Mrs. S.O. Bateman, 105 Charles St., Hertford and William W. Perry, forestry, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.R. Perry, of Route 3, Hertford.

Chancellor John T. Caldwell conferred the degrees on the largest class in the University's 83-year history of teaching, research and public service programs.

President William C. Friday and principal commencement speaker William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, joined thousands of relatives, friends and professors in applauding the graduates during the ceremony in William Neal Reynolds Coliseum.

The graduates were prepared to enter the major industrial enterprises and cultural endeavors of state and nation.

Many will start work at salaries higher than their fathers achieved until middle age, if then.

In geography, they represented North Carolina communities from the Atlantic to the Appalachians, other states to the Pacific and several dozen other nations.

In age, the graduates ranged from the early twenties to "Senior Citizen."

In economic, cultural, racial and religious backgrounds, they constituted a cross-section of North Carolina and America.

Among those winning degrees were 190 who were awarded coveted doctoral degrees and more than 400 who earned masters degrees, indicating the growing importance of North Carolina State University as a center for advanced academic work.

Birth Announcement

Dr. and Mrs. Jack Brinn of Hershey, Pa. announce the birth of their second child, first son, Galen Relfe, born at Hershey Medical Center Friday, April 28.

750 Attend Religious Event

This month the state of North Carolina is commemorating the 300th anniversary of organized religion.

And it began in our county - May, 1672.

To commemorate that event, a special service was held at the Perquimans County High School ballpark on Sunday, May 7 attended by about 750 people representing most of the churches in the area.

Speakers were Rev. Pat Robertson of channel 27 whose message was clear - that instead of always looking ahead, we should also look back - to Jesus' time and to Christ, himself for what was said and done in our behalf.

Another speaker was Dr. Grimsley Hobbs, president of Guilford College in Greensboro, who traced the history of the Quakers and other religions in this state. It was fascinating and informative.

The weather was beautiful and the service an inspiration to everyone in attendance.

In addition to the speakers - and guests - 1st District Rep. Walter B. Jones and State Sen. J.J. (Monk) Harrington - there are so many people to thank it would be impossible to list them by name.

The service was co-sponsored by the Quakers in the area and the Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Grimsley Hobbs, president of Guilford College in Greensboro, was one of the guest speakers at the 300th Anniversary of Organized Religion celebration held here May 7.

Dr. Hobbs traced the history of the Quakers and other religions in this state.

Trainee With Soil Conservation Service

Herman A. "Amp" Cobb has been assigned to the Perquimans-Chowan Work Unit this summer as a Student Trainee with the Soil Conservation Service.

Amp grew up on a farm in Southampton, Virginia. He graduated from Franklin High School, Franklin, Va. He has just completed his junior year at North Carolina State University where he is pursuing a degree in Agronomy.

Amp will be stationed in Perquimans County where he entered on duty Monday, May 15, 1972.

Past President's Dinner Held Monday

The annual Chamber of Commerce Past President's dinner was held Monday night and was described by all who attended as very successful.

Thanks to the generosity of the people at Harvey's Point the past presidents and members of the current Board of Directors of the C of C enjoyed a delicious meal that no restaurant in the Albemarle or most other areas could match.

The Chamber sincerely thanks all the people there who contributed so beautifully to an evening of fellowship and enjoyment.

Only two past presidents were not represented. One was the late Dr. T.P. Brinn, the other was Sid Harmon, now living in Wilson.

In the picture is R.L. Stevenson (center, standing) who is currently the president.

Seated are Marion Swindell, Bill Cox, Cecil Edward Winslow and Joe Nowell. Standing are Charles Harrell, Lester Simpson, Erle Haste, Jr. and Joel Hollowell, Jr.
