

Filing Deadline For Taxes

Employers have an important tax deadline on October 31, according to J. E. Wall, District Director of Internal Revenue for North Carolina.

That is the last day for reporting and paying both Social Security and withheld income taxes for the quarter ending September 30, 1972.

Employers should report these taxes on the pre-addressed Form 941 mailed them by IRS. They have until November 10 to file their returns if the entire quarterly tax liability has been deposited on time in a Federal Reserve Bank or authorized commercial bank.

Further information can be obtained from "Circular E-Employer's Tax Guide," Publication 15, available free at your IRS district office.

A-Day Weeks

Dr. George Melcher, president of a non-profit firm in New York, says a four-day work week begun at his firm as a three-month experiment is a success.

Melcher says employees working nine-hour days with less time for lunch have made fewer mistakes, missed fewer work days and exhibited improved morale. (Some employees are working even longer shifts.)

Such schedules seem to make sense for many other firms, and while results might not always be so happy, where they are, both employer and employee gain thereby. Most firms, however, must earn profits—and employees will have to keep that in mind.

IRS Ruling Affects Auto Prices

The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that an automobile's actual sales price and not the dealer's sticker price is to be used in computing the base price under the present wage and price guidelines.

The ruling that applies to trade-ins states that the actual sales price of a new car is the amount of the buyer's cash liability plus the wholesale value of the trade-in as shown in the dealer's used car valuation book, commonly known as the blue book. The new interpretation may result in considerable savings to the consumer.

For example, a buyer trades his used car for a new model with a "sticker price" of $4000. The blue book price lists the wholesale value of the trade-in as $1000 and the retail value as $1400. The dealer allows the buyer $1200 for the trade-in, making the buyer's cash liability $2800.

The actual sales price of the new car for the purposes of applying Price Commission regulations is not $4000, but the amount of the buyer's cash liability ($2800) plus the trade-in's wholesale value ($1000), making the new car's actual sales price $3800.

A dealer's markup is determined by comparing the cost and the actual sales price of the automobile. The dealer may charge a price in excess of the base price if his current markup does not exceed the markup used during the base period. For instance, assume that the base price for a new model is $3700 and the allowable markup during the base period is 15 per cent. If the dealer's cost of the new car is $3310, the maximum allowable sales price would be $3807.

IRS is currently checking new automobile prices to make sure that dealers understand the new ruling and are charging the correct price. Profit margin limitations may also be monitored during the survey.

Know Your Social Security

People getting a social security number for the first time should apply at least a month before they'll need it.

Applications from people who don't recall having had a social security number before generally are screened to make sure a second number isn't issued to the same person.

Screening takes time, so apply for your social security number early and you'll have it when you need it—when you get a job covered by social security.

A worker builds retirement, disability, and survivors protection for himself and his family by work and earnings credited to his 9-digit social security number.

Your social security number is yours alone and remains the same for life. Using more than one number can mean you're not getting full credit for your work and earnings.

When you get a job covered by social security, you should make sure your employer copies your name and number correctly from your social security card to his records.

More than nine out of 10 jobs are now covered or eligible to be covered by social security.

location of the Newbold-White land.

7. During the first 50-75 years the Newbold-White land belonged to persons of major influence and position in the Colony.

8. Prior to 1715-20 there were no public meeting places; therefore, official Colony business was conducted in private homes. The Newbold-White House is the only known survivor and is believed to be the oldest house in North Carolina.

9. The Newbold-White House is the earliest known brick dwelling of the hall and parlor type in the State and exhibits the persistence of medieval building practices and architectural forms better than any other structure in the State and is as important in North Carolina, architecturally and historically as the Adam Thoroughgood House and Bacon's Castle are in Virginia. Theophilus White House (1 1/4 miles South of the Newbold-White House)....

This story-and-a-half, gabled-roofed, three bay, hall and parlor frame structure, with massive chimneys at each end, represents the earliest period of North Carolina Architecture. It will be moved to the site of the Newbold-White and be used as an example — in the building itself — of how the earliest buildings in America were built by hand. It will also house exhibits of early tools, drawings and pictures of methods, and objects and items of Architectural and Building Trades significance from this early period.

It was probably built by Thomas Pierce (1669-1732) on land patented in 1694 and stayed in the Pierce family until 1758. Pierce was a prominent Quaker and a trustee of the Second Quaker (Society of Friends) Meeting House erected in Perquimans. The record shows that Friends were worshipping regularly in this house in 1725.

In 1758 it was purchased by Joseph White (Society of Friends), merchant and one of the original Directors of the Town of Hertford. It has remained in the possession of his descendants to this day. The house is named for Theophilus White, who owned it in 1808-1854, and his grandson of the same name, who owned it 1854-1911.
