I know most of you probably saw the letters e-t-c and wondered, now what are they doing with our beloved "Perquimans Weekly." Well readers, as the song says, "the times they are a-changing." So one change in the Weekly will be an added weekly column, namely the etc. This column is to inform those interested of the heavy happenings at Perquimans County High School.

The column will be written by individuals of the P.C.H.S. Journalism class that proudly produces the high school paper, "propinquity," meaning togetherness. Other interested students will make contributions by way of this column.

After this most enlightening explanation of exactly what is going on, I would like to move along and tell you some of the events that have happened in or at our institution of learning.

Seniors and juniors alike have had some excitement recently. The seniors decided to once again produce the traditional masterpiece known as the Senior Play. This year's play will include selected senior talent during intermissions. Two treats for the price of one quite a bargain. Seniors also received their graduation announcements and calling cards last week. An alteration will be made concerning the date of graduation (due to snow), but seniors are still thrilled at the thought of completing their high school education. Members of the junior class are busily working to raise funds for that annual gala affair known as the Junior-Senior Prom. Besides selling their all-famous Pollywogs (candy), they are now in the process of producing two one-act plays to add to the increasing money pile.

The Spokesman Quartet from Roanoke Bible College in Elizabeth City presented a season of gospel singing to Perquimans High School students on Friday morning. The program was extremely well-organized and very enjoyable.

A California Cuties basketball game was played Friday night. The beauties from Hollywood took on the disc jockeys from WGAI radio. As was expected, the cuties were victorious in a very exciting and humorous game.

Another exciting ballgame took place in the high school gym on Monday night. The student-faculty basketball game was once again held. Faculty females battled it out with members of the Letter

Club, while the male teachers challenged the Monogram Club. It was a rugged, fast-paced game, but there were no hard feelings.

For those of you who know how to read but hate to clean out basements, you'll be happy to know that the Marching Unit is still sponsoring a paper drive. To rid yourselves of old newspapers and magazines, just call Kathy Lane at 426-7782. You'll be helping yourselves and the unit.

In closing, I would like to wish Linda Ownley lots of luck, for she has the privilege of composing this column next week.

My philosophical side urges me to leave you with this thought, "In the game of life, don't forget to make your move!"
