Rifle Asso. Holds Meet

The National Rifle Association of America concluded its 102nd Annual Meetings here this week with the selection of a 30,000 acre spread in New Mexico as a National Shooting Center.

The Board of Directors authorized a feasibility study to determine if the acreage near Raton would be suitable for ranges, conservation studies and activities, and administrative facilities.

More than 15,000 delegates visited the 125 firearms exhibits; attended the daily sessions on gun laws, wildlife research, field firearms safety, survival tips for young hunters, National Hunting and Fishing Day; and lined up for hours to get autographs from the medal-winning members of the United States Olympic Shooting Team.

The gathering was held in the Washington Hilton Hotel.

C.R. Gutermuth, one of the world's best-known conservationists, was elected president. He succeeds Fred M. Hakenjos of San Diego, Calif., a retired chemicals executive. Gutermuth, a Washington, D.C., resident, holds office in the North American Wildlife Foundation, the Wildlife Society, the Izaak Walton League, the Explorers Club, Boone and Crockett Club, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners.
