

Name Changes

The Eastern Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association changed its name to Eastern Lung Association effective April 26, 1973.

The name change conforms with a move by the National Association, which has changed its name to American Lung Association, and by the State Association, now the North Carolina Lung Association. Both were "tuberculosis and respiratory disease" associations.

Rowland Pruette, President of the Eastern Lung Association, said shortening of the agency's name will make it easier for the public and groups to identify with the agency and its work.

He emphasized the change is in name only. "The goal of the association remains the same: the prevention and control of lung diseases. We will continue to appeal to the public to support our important work through the annual Christmas Seal campaign."

Under the leadership of Dr. Joe Pou, 1972 Christmas Seal Chairman, $91,987.60 was contributed in the Eastern Lung Association's 22 county area. Of this amount, total contributions for the following county is: Perquimans County—$2,020.81.

Pruette said this support enables the association to provide information programs about lung diseases, support professional education and research, and support cooperative work with health departments, schools, colleges, nurses, doctors and social welfare agencies for the community's general health.

Funds contributed to the Eastern Lung Association through the annual Christmas Seal Campaign will continue to be spent in the area on these efforts, Pruette said.

The National organization was formed in 1904; the North Carolina agency two years later. Affiliate agencies like the Eastern Lung Association, evolved from local service units into agencies serving various regions of the state.
