Teen Times

by Lisa Bernadette

It's undeniably true! 1973 marks the ninth anniversary of Beatle-mania. You know the group, even if you don't quite remember the year they revolutionized the music world (and then some) with their smash hit "I Want To Hold Your Hand". Well, they're no longer a group, but rather four extremely talented individual musicians. John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr continue to entertain music lovers the world over with unforgettable hit tunes.

Do your bit to help the anti-pollution campaign. Here's an easy way. Take your empty, No Deposit No Return soda bottles and caps to your nearest recycling center. If your town doesn't have a recycling center, get a group of friends together to encourage local merchants to sponsor one, or at least to set a place where recyclable material can be taken on a specific date.

There's more personal anti-pollution campaign going on, too. That's the campaign against pimples and blackheads, which are often aggravated by our dirty air.
