MRS. JANICE WINSLOW

Perquimans Personality

Mrs. Janice Winslow

By KATHY MARREN Staff Writer

She usually starts out "Rainy Mondays" in boots and slacks and will end up walking through mud puddles and jumping ditches. She is Mrs. Janice Winslow, the Attendance Officer for Perquimans County.

She is the only officer for the four Perquimans Schools, which include approximately 2200 students. When a parent is negligent in sending a child to school, it is her job to talk with the parent and student to explain the importance of an education. According to her, this usually works. If conferences such as these and all other means fail, then as a last resort the case goes to court. In her seven year career, about six cases annually go to court. "But most of the time, Mrs. Winslow said, the parents are very cooperative. This makes my job more rewarding and less depressing."

When a child's poor attendance is due to a long illness, lack of medical attention, or other personal problems, it is part of her work to refer these families to the Social Service or Welfare Department for the necessary help.

Mrs. Winslow said, "The major cause for a student's lack in school attendance is usually due

$6 Million Paid To Fraud Victims

More than $6 million was restored to potential victims of mail frauds during a recent nine-month period, Postmaster Stokes reported today.

Henry Stokes said he had been advised by Chief Postal Inspector and Assistant Postmaster General William J. Cotter that Postal Inspection Service enforcement activities resulted in $6,222,660 in restitutions to those victimized by mail frauds. The report covered the first three quarters of the current 1973 fiscal year, through March.

"The report shows that it is worthwhile for those who have good reason to conclude they have been the victim of a scheme to defraud in which the mails were used to report the facts to the post office," the local postmaster commented.

The restitutions resulted from 3,630 promotions that were discontinued largely on Inspection Service action. Restitutions ordered by the courts totaled $2,853,528; "voluntary" restitutions totalled $2,009,700; and additional $1,359,426 restored from other sources.

Included in the 12,990 or more mail fraud investigations completed each year by Postal Inspectors, "Postmaster Stokes said, "are those based on complaints from postal customers who allege failure to receive merchandise or promised refunds from mail order firms. Not all such failures or broken promises indicate a scheme to defraud, but may, in fact, be merely the result of poor business practices," he said.

"However, when a postal customer cannot obtain satisfaction through his own efforts," Mr. Stokes added, "he should not just write his transaction off as a loss. Return of his money is possible in some cases."
