Margaret Tynes, soprano, with the Metropolitan Opera, Vienna, appeared in the first Elizabeth City State University Lyceum Committee series held Wednesday, Sept. 25, at 8 p.m. in Moore Hall auditorium.

Ms. Tynes has been labeled by Time Magazine as "the girl with veins of fire."

A native of Virginia, she earned her B.S. degree at A&T University in Greensboro, did additional study and earned her Masters degree from Columbia University.

career. Her first major production was the title role in Strauss' "Salome" at the Spoleto Festival. From there she did Lady Macbeth in Verdi's "Macbeth," in Switzerland. She had appeared in every major opera house in Europe, in London BBC-TV created a version of the Orpheus legend especially for her entitled "Dark Pilgrimage."
