Cooperative Education

Plans to further develop and implement the Cooperative Education Program, at Elizabeth City State University, moved a step closer to becoming a reality when Miss Valerie F. Villines, Director, announced that nine students have been selected for participation, this semester. As a result of the cooperative efforts of the Albemarle Regional Planning and Development Commission (ARPDC), six of the students will be placed in job slots in the local area. While most of the students selected are business administration majors, other areas represented are geology, English, and social science.

"In view of the critical economic conditions, including cutbacks in production and employment, this breakthrough in seeking practical work experiences for our students is most encouraging," Chancellor Marion D. Thorpe stated, when informed of the program's progress.

"Hopefully business and industrial firms that are represented in our College-Industry Cluster Program can eventually hire our students during alternate semesters, as soon as the economy picks up," Miss Villines expressed.

Chancellor Thorpe added, "As we continue to plan and develop our Cooperative Education Program, I am sure that President Gerald Ford's signing of an Executive Order 'permitting Cooperative Education students to be given career or career-conditional appointments in federal agencies' will give us greater latitude".

The ECSU Cooperative Education Program, designed to provide students with alternating semesters of practical experiences and paid employment in business, industrial, government, or service-type situations, is supported by a $35,000 federal grant.

Miss Villines also reported that the following firms and agencies have already expressed an interest in employing ECSU students: North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, Durham, NC; Department of Health Resources Administration, in Maryland; American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Atlanta, Ga.; Martin Marietta Aggregates, Raleigh, NC. WAVY-TV, Portsmouth, Va., North Carolina Department of Agriculture Raleigh, NC; Digital, Maynard, Mass.; Dow Chemical USA, Midland, Mich.; National Park Service in North Carolina; Central Intelligence Agency, Washington; and the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, Boston, Mass.

Legislation Access

The Legislative Services Commission has taken action that will allow all North Carolina citizens easy access to complete information on the status and legislative history of all current legislation being considered by the 1975 General Assembly of North Carolina. Beginning January 24, 1975, any interested person may get information on the status of current legislation by making toll-free calls from any location in North Carolina to the Bill Status Desk in the Legislative Library. The General Assembly will bear the expense of maintaining the toll-free incoming line, reached at 1-800-662-7910 (in Raleigh, 829-7779).

the State Department of Public Instruction in Raleigh, N.C.

Ms. Jewell will lead a day long workshop dealing with music learned previously in local classrooms.

The program will include sacred songs, spirituals, folk songs, a group of popular songs and a special patriotic medley. The program will also contain special instruments and dances steps.

Parents and the public are invited to attend. There is no admission for this night of entertainment.

February's Human Relations Month

Citing the State's desire to "continue a constructive approach to improving human relations for its citizens through understanding, communication, and specific programs," Governor Jim Holshouser has proclaimed February as human relations month in North Carolina.

State and local human relations commissions have planned special programs and projects throughout the month.

In his proclamation, the Governor noted that "the State of North Carolina desires to continue to promote and maintain a wholesome climate of human relations among the citizens, between groups, races, and among persons of varying economic status for the progress and general welfare of the total state."

Who'll Do The Work When All're Drunk?

Now I've heard everything! I read where a professor has suggested that the energy crisis can be solved by the use of alcohol as a motor fuel while simultaneously contributing to the solution of air pollution, water pollution, unemployment, and poverty.

Now, if that's not the "cat's meow"! This guy's idea proposes blending grain alcohol with gasoline at a 20 percent ratio, having Uncle Sam guarantee the program's price support until 1980, doubling the annual corn crop acreage to produce the extra corn needed, and moving the hard-core unemployed from their ghettos into rural areas where each family would be responsible for distilling alcohol from his own crop.

My only question, fans, is assuming the idea would work, with so much alcohol around, who's going to do the job when everybody's drunk?

Receive All "A's"

RALEIGH—Students at North Carolina State University set a new record for academic achievement during the fall semester.

Chancellor John T. Caldwell announced this week that 3,825 of State's 15,500 students had earned grade averages of "B" or better for Dean's List honors. The honor students represent more than one in four students at State. Perfect "A" averages were earned by 226 North Carolinians.

Dr. Caldwell commended the large group of honor students, noting that the fields of study offered at N.C. State are among the most rigorous in American higher education.

The following are the Perquimans County Dean's List students, their fields of study, parents' names and addresses. Both students received all A's:

Richard S. Hoskins, zoology, Mr. and Mrs. R.S. Hoskins, Hertford; Charles E. White, III, mechanical engineering, Mr. and Mrs. C.E. White, Jr., Hertford.
