BELVIDERE HOUSE NOMINATED — Belvidere in Perquimans County has been nominated for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places by Larry E. Tise, State Historic Preservation Officer. The Register is described as a national list of distinctive properties worthy of preservation because of their historical or other cultural value. Belvidere is well-preserved Georgian style plantation house distinguished by its unusual and dramatic hip-on-gambrel roof. The porch, modillion cornice, and interiors are handsome, representative Georgian elements that demonstrate the wealth and taste of the Newby family for whom the house was built. It was built in the mid to late 18th century (tradition says 1767) for either Thomas Newby or his son Exum. The Newbys were substantial planters and both were active in local Friends' meetings; the Quaker denomination was an important influence in the early development of the Albemarle region. The house descended into the Lamb family, also Friends, and remained in this family until the 1930's. The many descendants of the family across the country have continued to be interested in the house, and one of the present owners is a Lamb descendant. The nomination was submitted in connection with the Division of Archives and History's long-range program to identify and document the authenticity of historic properties in North Carolina. Approval of the nomination by the Department of the Interior usually takes about six months and will be announced through the state's congressional delegation.
