WOODARD'S PHARMACY HERTFORD, N.C.

Neither Holy nor Roman nor an Empire

Like the Holy Roman Empire — which was neither Holy, nor Roman, nor an Empire — the so-called Health Care System in this country is neither Health nor Care nor a System. Today, 97% of the medical effort in the United States goes to Disease, not to Health. It deals with Cures, not with Care. And it is not a System, but a haphazard conglomeration of red tape for patients, pharmacists, and doctors, alike.

It's a frustrating mess, that's what it is! When will our leaders channel this nation's health expenditures into sensible disease prevention programs, greater health education and a reduction of computerized fumbling?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is an essay entitled, The Cotton Seed, and was written by Laura Elizabeth Monds, sixth grade student in 1930. It won first place in an essay contest and was, at that time, published in The Perquimans Weekly. Miss Monds is today known as Mrs. Robert E. Sutton of Rt. 3, Hertford. The article was submitted by her daughter, Mrs. William Wray Chappell of Rt. 3, Hertford.)

THE COTTON SEED
By Laura Elizabeth Monds

I was a little cotton seed in the ginhouse.

One day a farmer came and bought me and carried me home. He then left me in his barn. I was almost decided that I would forever lay there when one bright sunny day the farmer carried me and put me in a little box concern drawn by two horses from which I was dropped in the soft moist earth. When it rained I became swollen up, my back split and fell off.

One morning I awoke to see the sunshine. I was then two beautiful green leaves. The farmer's little boy ploughed me with one of the horses I was planted with. Then I was worked by his little girl with the hoe. My long roots drank the water from the soil and the sunshine. I grew and was soon a large plant, with long limbs. One day a little bud came on me and the next day a flower. I decided then every one would admire me, but I soon fell off and died; then it left a big hard ball which soon opened and there were five white locks. I decided it was all over. Then I was taken to the ginhouse and carried through great wheels. After I was ginned and the seed taken out I was then taken to the great manufacturing mill. There I was woven into a bolt of goods. I was carried and dyed a beautiful color. Then I was taken and put on a shelf of a large dry-goods store in the city. I felt that I was prettier than my brothers and sisters on the shelf, so they all abused me and made fun of me. But I decided I would wait to see what would happen. Early the next morning there came a little girl and her mother. "Oh, what a beautiful piece of goods; please buy me a dress of that," said Shirley. I was sold to her mother and carried home and made into little dresses for Shirley. How proud she felt when she walked to school wearing her pretty rose dress. But she never felt prouder than I. Shirley was a good little girl and took good care of me. I was often washed and starched so as to make me look new and clean. After a long time I was worn out and thrown away. I knew I was of no more good in this world.

One day I was sold to another man and carried to a new mill and ground up into a kind of pulp. Then I was made into many white sheets and formed a tablet. Again I was carried and put on the shelves and Shirley came and bought me.
