County (Continued from Page 1)

page newspaper tabloid handout, titled Alliance for Progress Report, which explained the programs and projects being conducted by AFP as well as future plans.

A total of 113 education booths, a new NACo record, was available with service, product, program, and federal government information of interest to county government officials across the nation.

Over 3,000 delegates attended the four-day convention which was filled with business meetings of the association, addresses by national figures, and policy-making sessions.

Thirteen NACo steering committees met to make recommendations for approval of action in the following areas: community development, criminal justice and public safety, environment and energy, employment, health and education, home rule and regional affairs, labor-management relations, land use, public lands, taxation and finance, transportation, welfare and social services, and urban affairs.

A special session held on the closing day of the convention, July 27, proved to be a highlight with a keynote address by Walter F. Mondale, Vice President of the United States.

Other guest speakers at NACo's 42nd annual conference included Peter Flaherty, Deputy Attorney General; Hale Champion, undersecretary with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; Rev. Leon Howard Sullivan, founder and chairman of the board of Opportunities Industrialization Centers (OICs) of America, Inc.; William G. Milliken, Governor of the State of Michigan; and Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget in Washington, D.C.

Convention delegates also had the opportunity to select from more than 80 workshop sessions presenting information and panel discussions on problems and issues of interest to county governments.
