APRIL SNOW AND SLEET HITS CROPS IN COUNTY: Temperatures high in the seventies following hard on the heels of snow and sleet last Friday night reveal that some crop damage was suffered from the storm in Belvidere and other townships. EXTEND LIFE OF CLOTHING
With clothing costs continuing to escalate at a runaway pace, consumers need ways to extend the life of their clothing. Good care that keeps clothing fresh and new looking is of most importance to long-lasting clothes. Although a few stains are impossible to remove, many will come out if treated promptly and correctly.

Prompt attention is the most critical factor in successful stain removal. Attend to a spill as soon as it occurs. Remove any excess stain before it has time to penetrate the fabric. If the staining material is a liquid, use a clean white blotter to absorb the excess. Or lift off excess non-liquid stains with a dull edge (table knife, letter opener, paper shears).

If the proper solvent is handy and immediate attention to the stain is possible, follow the appropriate procedure. When nothing else is possible, sponging with clear water will help.

Working with a stain while it's fresh and still wet generally will prevent it from becoming "set."

Always work with a stain from the center to the outer edges of the stain. Move the blotter as it begins to absorb so the stain will not be redeposited.

The following items are suggested to have on hand for equipping the Home Stain Removal Kit: rubbing alcohol, household ammonia, chemically pure amyl acetate, chlorine and oxygen bleach, coconut oil or mineral oil, color remover, enzyme fortified detergent or pre-soak product, glycerine, three percent solution hydrogen peroxide, all-purpose liquid household cleaner, liquid household detergent, color mouthwash, white petroleum jelly, pre-wash soil and stain remover, soap, tri chloroethane, steam distilled turpentine, and white vinegar.

A frequent summer time problem may be a grass stain. The following procedure is recommended: (1) enzyme pre-soaks may effectively remove grass stains. If stain persists, bleach with three percent solution of hydrogen peroxide. Rinse and launder using bleach appropriate for the fabric. (2) Work detergent into the stain. Launder, using bleach appropriate for the fabric. If stain persists, sponge with rubbing alcohol (one part alcohol, two parts water on acetate and colored fabrics) and then rinse.

Another frequent problem comes from ballpoint ink pens. Sponge stain with rubbing alcohol or pre-wash soil and stain remover until bleeding stops. Or spray with aerosol hair spray until wet-looking. Work detergent into stain. Rinse. Repeat if necessary. Launder using bleach appropriate for the fabric.

For more information concerning stain removal techniques and procedures, contact the Home Economics Extension Agent.

Participates in special weekend

RALEIGH — Approximately 75 "little girls" were college coeds at Peace College for the weekend of April 8-9.

The small fries...and some who are almost old enough to be real "Peace Girls"...were special guests of the college during annual Little Sister Weekend.

Among the visitors was Dabney Woodard of Hertford, who was a guest of Mary Bryant of Hertford, a Peace sophomore.

Special events planned to entertain the diminutive guests included a cookout, ice cream party and sports activities. They also had the opportunity to see the movie, "The Sword in the Stone" Saturday night and to ride a bus to the First Presbyterian Church where they attended Sunday morning worship services.

Would you go on protein diet?

Just how safe are protein diets? My belief is that when used correctly, they're as safe as other diets. But here's the rub. People often do not follow directions.

Instead of supplementing protein formulas adequately with vitamins, minerals and foods, plus receiving medical supervision, dieters sometimes use protein by itself and eventually deplete their body's potassium level, the mineral which controls heartbeat.

Protein diets (powdered, or liquid) can be effective as an aid to losing weight. Just use correctly. I'll be happy to counsel with you in further detail in the pharmacy.

The world would be healthier without so much fat!
