Jesse...he's working for North Carolina

Senator Jesse Helms' concern for the working man is easy to understand. He's had to work for a living all of his life. While he was working his way through college, Jesse held down three jobs at once. He's never had it easy...and working for a living is something he understands.

As our U.S. Senator, Jesse Helms has fought for the rights of North Carolina workers.

Right now Jesse Helms is lining up support on Capitol Hill for legislation that will protect the jobs of our textile workers against the threat of cheap foreign imports.

Jesse was instrumental in securing the new Campbell Soup plant for Maxton, N.C.

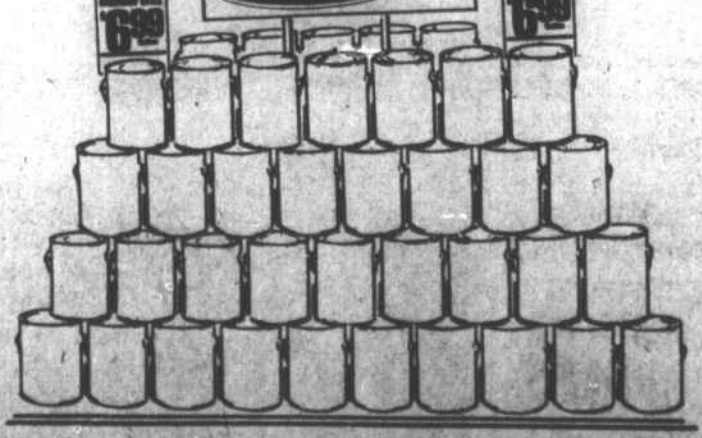

Senator Helms has called for the immediate removal of HEW Secretary Joseph Califano whose attacks on our tobacco industry threaten many jobs in North Carolina.

Jesse Helms has taken a lead in the fight to lower taxes and stop inflation so the working man's paycheck will be worth more.

Jesse needs your vote in November to continue working for North Carolina's working men and women.
