NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

COLIFORM BACTERIA FOUND IN DRINKING WATER

During April (month) coliform bacteria was found in drinking water samples from the Winfall Water System (name of water system) above the limit as it appears in the "Rules Governing Public Water Supplies."

Coliform bacteria is normally found in the intestinal tract of man or other warm blooded animals and can be easily found in drinking water samples. The presence of coliform bacteria indicates that some contamination has occurred.

In an attempt to correct the cause of the contamination we have done the following:

(Check the appropriate examples)

- We have disinfected the water system.
- We have flushed the water lines.
- We have installed continuous disinfection equipment.
- Check samples submitted on April, 24 (dates) show the water to be free of coliform bacteria.

Job tips offered

Two popular summer jobs, lawn mowing and baby sitting, will cost more than they are worth to some teenagers this year.

The novice lawn mower operator is likely to join the ranks of 60,000 Americans seriously injured each year while cutting the grass. Mower accidents tend to peak early in the season and are more apt to occur when using an unfamiliar machine.

The baby sitter faces the unpredictable behavior of a child. Children have an increased number of accidents when guests are in the home, in unfamiliar surroundings, and during any other interruption of their normal routine.

Both jobs are serious undertakings, requiring knowledge, skill and the ability to accept responsibility.

The Atlanta Regional Office of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission offers safety information kits to aid teenagers pursuing these summer jobs.
