ASCS update

by THOMAS RIDDICK
Crop disaster program
Several producers have already filed applications for low yield credit because of yield losses on corn due to the drought conditions we have had in the county. Producers are reminded of the disaster program and the possibility of earning payments when there is a loss.

On farms that the yield falls below 60 percent of the established farm yield, farmers may qualify for payment to compensate for some of the loss. Each farm stands on its own in determining eligibility and payments. Production must be kept separate and turned in to us on each farm for which application is filed. This can be weight tickets or sales receipts identified with the farm number or name and showing the moisture reading, producer's name, and date.

If the grain is stored, call us and we will measure the quantity in the bin. Level the grain in the bin, and should we not be able to get to your farm immediately when called, mark the depth of the grain on the bin for us to get our measurement.

Applications must be filed within 15 days of harvest completion on the farm.

Cost-sharing
Sign up now for cost-sharing through our ACP program on carrying out needed conservation work. A sign up period was designated to run through Sept. 10 for taking application on fall practices. Funds must be allocated by this date or we will lose what is available for our use in the county. Request can be made by phone or by visiting the office. Cost-sharing is available on such practices as seeding winter cover crop, establishing permanent vegetative cover (pasture), pasture improvement, lagoons and others. Act now, don't lose out on what is available to you.

Commodity loans
Commodity loans are available for both farm stored and approved USDA

Farm Bureau advisors to meet

Over 150 members of Farm Bureau commodity advisory committees from throughout North Carolina will meet in Raleigh, Sept. 5, to begin the organization's "policy development process".

Donald Madre, president of the Perquimans County Farm Bureau, said representatives in nine commodity areas will meet for the purpose of pinpointing some of the issues and problems that farmers will be facing in farm commodities during 1981 and future years.

Representing the Perquimans County Farm Bureau at the meeting will be Ed Nixon, peanut committee; Billy Williams, field crops; and Tommy Harrell, horticulture.

Madre said that after issues are raised and discussed by commodity committees, they are submitted to the individual county Farm Bureaus for consideration by resolutions committees prior to the county annual meetings. Madre pointed out that the Raleigh meeting will begin at 10 a.m. with a report on the current agricultural situation and general problem areas that will be confronting agriculture in the future. Committees will later begin their individual discussions.

Madre suggested that Farm Bureau members bring ideas or questions to the attention of local committee members.

"This policy development process assures Farm Bureau members that the organization at county, state, and national levels will work for those objectives which members themselves have initiated and decided," he said.

Soil test measures nematodes

Soil-borne nematodes may be robbing your garden of fruit of its potential yield of part and vegetables. A soil assay can help determine if you have this problem and how serious it is.

Nematodes are round worms that can't be seen without the aid of a microscope. Some of them cause large swelling on the roots of some vegetables and farm crops. These swellings are easily seen if you pull up a plant and view the roots. North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service specialists explain that other nematodes cause injury but don't cause root knot. Therefore, the best way to determine if you have nematodes in your garden soil is to take a soil sample and have it assayed.

The assay by the North Carolina Department of Agriculture will cost you only $1 per sample. You probably wouldn't want to submit more than one sample from a normal size garden. This composite sample can be taken by collecting small amounts of soil from several locations in the garden, mixing it thoroughly and taking about a quart of the soil for the assay.

The soil to be assayed should be put into a plastic bag and kept cool. Forms to submit information are available from the county agricultural extension office.
