Details set on disaster loans for farmers

Larry Cherry, Charlotte District Director for the U.S. Small Business Administration recently announced details of the SBS Physical and Economic Injury Loan Program available to farmers and businesses in North Carolina.

"Any farmer who suffered losses from the drought beginning May 1, through September 24, 1980, is eligible to apply for a loan to cover the loss in established normal crop yield.

"Assistance is available only to the extent that the damage exceeds any recovery from agricultural grants or insurance," said Cherry.

"Through the program, we hope to help the farmer pay his debts this year and put him in a position to obtain credit for next year's crop through normal channels," he added.

While disaster loans may not exceed a 30-year maturity, ten years is expected to be the normal maximum term with most loans ranging from 5 to 7 years.

Where credit is otherwise available, the interest rate will be 8 1/4 percent. If, in the judgment of SBA, credit is unavailable from private sources, the interest rate will be 5 percent.

Economic injury loans will be available to small businesses that deal with farmers that can demonstrate the extent of economic injury. These loans will carry an interest rate of 8 1/4 percent.

Applicants may file for physical disaster loans until April 6, 1981, and economic injury loans must be filed by July 6, 1981.

Applications are available at the U.S. Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service Office, located in the ARPDC Building in Hertford.

ASCS director Tommy Riddick said his office has already been working with farmers in computing yield losses.

"I've also been advising farmers to take the applications to their CPA's or attorneys for assistance in filling them out," said Riddick, "because it's quite a process."

Riddick and county agricultural extension chairman Bill Jester are expected to attend a general information meeting on the disaster loans Nov. 24. Riddick said they would be more fully informed on the program after that time.

Market summary

A total of 12,262 feeder pigs were sold on 14 state graded sales during week of November 2, according to the Market News Service of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. Prices were $2.75 to $6 lower per hundred pounds this week.

US 1-2 pigs weighing 40-50 pounds averaged $72.23 per hundred pounds with No. 3s $55.32; 50-60 pound 1-2s averaged $67.52, No. 3s $49.90; 60-70 pound 1-2s $61.04, No. 3s $47.83; 70-80 pound 1-2s $54.96 per hundred pounds with No. 3s $47.41.

At weekly livestock auctions held within the state the week of November 3, prices for slaughter cows were steady to $2 higher and feeder calves $2 to $4 higher. Utility and commercial cows brought $42 to $49.50; Choice veals 150 to 250 pounds $60 to $67; Good slaughter steers at one market $3.75 to $64.50. Medium frame Amber One muscle steers 400-500 pounds brought $62 to $69 per hundred pounds and same grade heifers 400-500 pounds sold $53 to $60. No. 1 muscle feeder cows sold from $40 to $49.50. Baby calves under 3 weeks of age brought $40 to $75 per head.

Market hogs brought mostly $3.10 to $48.10 per hundred weight and 300-600 pound sows $40.50 to $47.40.

Corn prices were steady to 5 cents higher and soybeans irregular through Thursday, November 6, compared to the same period of the previous processing plants during the week of November 10. This week 8.4 million birds were processed in North Carolina with an average live bird weight of 4.02 pounds per bird on November 2.

Heavy type hens were higher this past week. Supplies were short and demand good. Heavy type hen prices 2 1/4 to 23 cents per pound at the farm with buyers loading. For the period November 3 to 7, gross tobacco sales on South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt totaled only 985,565 pounds and averaged $132.50 per hundred, down $4.49; Eastern Belt 34.2 million pounds and averaged $138.19, down $10.95; Old and Middle Belt 13.3 million pounds were sold for an average of $130.07 per hundred, down $9.27. For this period the Stabilization Corporation received 17.0

percent on the Border Belt, 25.7 percent on the Eastern Belt and 33 percent on the Old and Middle Belt. South Carolina and Border Belt closed for the season this week.

Market hogs at daily cash buying stations about the state sold .50 to $1 higher during week of November 3 and ranged mostly $48 to $49 per hundred pounds. Sows 300-600 pounds ranged $35.50 to $44.

Perquimans Gardening

By Jean Winslow

All plants in pots should be brought in now, and if they have grown well during the summer, it may be time to change to bigger containers.

Here are some tips for repotting:

- Go up one pot size only. Roots like to be a little crowded and indeed, most plants refuse to flower until they become a trifle pot bound.
- Pots must be clean, clean, clean. Scrub or dip the container in chlorine bleach to prevent the transferral of varminths from the porch to the living room.
- Put gravel, shards (broken clay pots) or, as it is suggested in Betsy Trundle's "Gull's Eye View," a balled up nylon stocking over the hole in the bottom of the pot to insure good drainage. If you bring soil in from the garden you will have to sterilize it in a 140 degree oven for 45 minutes.
- However, if you've ever watched that insidious dial on the electric meter go round and round, you know that buying a bag of potting soil is cheaper.
- Check your garden books, (or call me!) to see what proper soil proportions are for a specific plant. Some require more sand, others more peat, etc.
- Check roots and trim if necessary. As you put in soil around the roots, bang the pot gently on a surface to settle it and eliminate air pockets. Tamp down with your thumbs while rotating the pot in your hands.
- Put an appropriate saucer under the pot. If your house is dry from the furnace, first place gravel or stones in the saucer, then put the pot on top of them. Water left in the saucer cannot rot roots this way, and in the meantime will evaporate, providing a little humidity.
- Plants are inclined to lose a few leaves while adjusting to their new home. Don't panic - resist the urge to over-water and over-fertilize. Stick a knife or a little stick into the soil. If it comes out clean, then water - but not until. Water hanging baskets with ice cubes - no drips. Mist ferns when you think about it.
- Follow directions for fertilizing - don't guess.
- Keep a can of all-purpose house and garden spray handy in case of white flies, aphids, spider mites, scale, and the like.
- Plants can handle less heat rather than more. What they don't like is extremes in temperature, like being too close to a window pane that is alternately cold and then hot.
- Finally, (and this is the hard part) if a plant fails to respond to your ministrations and goes sour on you, eliminate it, forget it, and find another green friend to take its place.

Hog meet set

The N.C. Agricultural Extension Service has scheduled a series of five regional swine conferences to be held at Wilson, Greensboro, Kinston, Oxford and Clinton.

Programs will be scheduled at other sites early in 1981.

The educational conferences are offered by the extension service each year in order to bring Tar Heel pork producers up to date on the latest production and marketing information.

The conference programs include presentations on nutrition, housing, energy conservation, animal health, breeding and marketing. A talk on the use of aflatoxin contaminated corn in swine rations will be included at most of the sessions.

Programs will begin at each site at 3:30 p.m. and end around 8 p.m. Detailed information is available at the county extension office.

The regional swine conference schedule is as follows: Nov. 18 - Moose Lodge, Wilson; Nov. 25 - County Agricultural Center, Greensboro; Dec. 2 - Lenoir Livestock Arena, Kinston; Dec. 3 - Webb High School cafeteria, Oxford; Dec. 4 - Clinton, Kirkwood Building.
