Area CPR program exceeds yearly goal

Up until three years ago, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, commonly known as CPR, was known by few people. Today, however, only three years after the implementation of the CPR project in the region, over 4,800 persons have been trained in this life-saving technique.

The projected goal set for this past fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1983, was 750 persons. A total of 1,283 individuals were trained in Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Hyde, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Tyrrell and Washington Counties.

This exceeded the regional goal by 533 persons.

CPR is a combination of artificial breathing and artificial circulation which should be started immediately as an emergency procedure when cardiac arrest occurs by individuals properly trained to do so.

CPR classes can be completed in nine hours and include a combination of classroom instruction and practical exercise.

Charlene Dignan, Emergency Medical Services Coordinator, explained the program is sponsored through the cooperative efforts of the Albemarle Commission in Hertford and the State Office of Emergency Medical Services.

According to Ms. Dignan, "112 certified instructors are available to teach CPR classes throughout the ten-county region."

"It is only through the enthusiasm and hard work of these instructors that this program has become one of the most successful in the state."

All individuals, businesses, schools, church and civic organizations are encouraged to become involved and learn this life-saving technique. As many people as possible need to be properly trained to further strengthen the EMS system.

If you or your group organization would like more information or are interested in scheduling a class, contact Charlene Dignan, EMS Coordinator, at 426-5753. One day it may save the life of someone you love!

Health competition program announced

North Carolina is one of 40 states participating in the 1983 Community Health Promotion Award sponsored by the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services.

The annual competition is open to public, private and voluntary agencies or groups that have developed health promotion programs in exercise and fitness, nutrition, alcohol and drug abuse, anti-smoking campaigns or other prevention services.

Meredith Cosby, project manager for health education/risk reduction in the North Carolina Department of Human Resources' Division of Health Services, is coordinating the North Carolina health promotion effort.

"In these times of soaring medical costs and economic uncertainty, it's vitally important to encourage people to develop healthy lifestyles," Cosby said.

"Prevention is the best way to cut down health care costs, and to improve the quality of life. We hope that this prestigious national award will stimulate more communities in our state to get involved in promoting good health."

Each state can submit up to five projects to be considered for the national award. The deadline for applications is September 1.

A special committee appointed by the Division of Health Services will select five of the most outstanding health promotion programs in North Carolina for consideration.

For more information about the Community Health Promotion Award contact Meredith Cosby, Adult Health Services, North Carolina Division of Health Services, P.O. Box 2091, Raleigh, N. C., 27602, (919) 733-7081.

dolphin are really being taken in large numbers.

All waterfowling in this area, at one time or another, gripe about the early season we always get stuck with; and yours truly is one of the guilty parties.

Well, on August 22, 1983 at 7:30 p.m. at the Pasquotank County Courthouse in Elizabeth City, the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission will hold a public hearing to get the public's opinion on how the waterfowl regulations should be set for the upcoming season.

Let's see how many people we can get there. It's about time we were instrumental in getting some changes made. This is a prime time to do it with license fees going up and the state trying to get voluntary support for a state waterfowl stamp. If you duck hunt, be there. Let's try to get a season we can really enjoy.

Things down at the "S" Bridge are slow during the day, but there are some fish being taken after dark.

White Perch are being caught in fair numbers on down the river, but your best bet is out in the sound and then the best fishing is on the other side. There have been some flounder taken out in the river, but they are few and far between.

Things down on the beach are hit or miss on the piers and surf. Seems they always bit yesterday about this time of year. Offshore fishing is really picking up. Billfish are being taken in fair numbers, but tuna and Perquimans Board of Education Chairman Clifford Winslow and Schools Superintendent Pat Harrell urged the commissioners to endorse the new one-half cent sales tax legislation.

Winslow further recommended that the full county share of the funds be allocated to the school system for facility needs.

The commissioners set a public hearing on the sales tax for 7 p.m. on August 15.

"This is one thing we'll gain more from that we'll put in," Commissioner Simpson said in his endorsement of the plan.

Roy West of the state Department of Transportation reported that it would cost approximately $10,000 to bring streets in the Riverview Park subdivision up to state standards for their inclusion into the state-maintained road system.

West told the commissioners that the county has a balance of $22,863 in their account set up to bring new roads into the state system. The upgrading was approved.

Jack Leary was awarded a contract to clean, prune and spray the shrubbery around the County Office Building on Church Street. His bid of $1,050 was lower than the $4,947 submitted by Central Garden Center and $8,895.50 submitted by Sawyer's Landscaping.

Commissioners White and Chappell recommended the purchase of a $129.95 20-inch push mower from Ace Hardware and a $150 string trimmer from Hertford Hardware. Commissioner Ward abstained from the vote.

Activities also included fishing, swimming, sailboating, canoeing, model rocketry, a talent show and campfire gathering. Director of the camp was Dr. Charles Coble of the ECU science education faculty.

He was assisted by counselors, certified science teachers and camp staff members.

Cornelius Mack of Route 1, Belvidere, was among those attending.

Mack attends camp

Seventy-five elementary school children from 31 North Carolina counties participated in East Carolina University's residential summer science camp at Camp Caroline this summer.

The program designed for children of ages 10-12, was the fifth annual program held at the Pamlico county camp, and featured a week of high interest science activities designed to increase an awareness and knowledge of the environment.
