It's time again to cut back and clean up for fall growing season.

Divide asparagus and Boston ferns now. If the plants have really become pot-bound, remove from container, cut in half with a sharp knife, and pare away some of the old compacted roots. Replant in pots only one inch larger than root ball, using fresh potting soil.

•Clean up your act. From now on, you'll be getting crop residue, both from harvesting and annuals finishing their life cycles. Pests can be inhibited next spring by removing debris now that will harbor them over the winter.

N. C. State horticulutists suggest that you keep weeding, hand-pick and destroy pests, and take stock of the pests you had this year so you can

.When the leaves of your caladiums die, withhold water and store in a cool, dark place. Do not water. You can start them again in the greenhouse or lightly heated room in February or March. Place outside in the garden after danger of frost has passed.

•Put some bonemeal on your established peonies and order some new ones for next season.

Cut back hollyhocks.

Give camellias a little boost for winter blooming with a tad of fertilizer, thorough watering and plenty of mulch.

This native of Japan is actually a super-vigorous weed which can become a real pest. While its whitishyellow blooms are highly aromatic, it can kill the plant it invades.

I will not bore you with more than a few of the good guys in this family, but there are some you really ought to meet and utilize in your landscape.

Mid-April bloom: Winter honeysuckle, or fragrantissima, is evergreen in our area. Very fragrant creamy yellow flowers that bloom all winter in the South, red fruits, native of China.

Early May: Privet honeysuckle, or pileata, is low spreading. White blooms, purple fruits in October. Good at seashore or river banks. Can stand some shade, native of China.

Mid-May: Bo Honeysuckle, or nitia, has small cream colored flowers, purple fruits, native of China. "Dropmore Scarlet," a variety has brilliant scarlet flowers in a trumpet shape, but is not fragrant (can't have everything); native of U.S.

Late May: Dwarf Alps honeysuckle, var. amoena, is valuable because of its size. Small, deep red flowers, red fruit. Native of Central Europe.

Early June: Cream honeysuclke vine, or etrusca superba has dark yellow flowers and large leaves; native of Southern Europe.

Late June: Henry honeysculke, or henryi, has yellowish to purple flowers. Excellent, controllable

If leaf curl occurs, treat with dormant fungicide spray. Propagating with cuttings or layering results in plants truer to the parents.

Let's go back to pest-type honeysuckle.

N. C. State horniculturists suggest 2, 4-D or A mitrole. Use two tablespoons 2, 4-D amine per gallon of water to which you have added two teaspoons household detergent for better coverage.

This is not a new idea by any means and I, for one, just don't think it'll go. Money raised, for instance, in North Carolina is not enough after it is split up to do much good for any one area of our state.
