One Stop Auto Parts experiences active year

Editor's Note: The following story was submitted by Betty B. Hare, owner of One Stop Auto Parts in Hertford.

1986 has already been a busy year for us at One Stop Auto Parts through the business involvements with our community and our customers.

In March we participated in a promotion to help support our local FFA Chapter which was offered by the manufacturers of our Wix filter product. The FFA Chapter received 20-cents for each box top turned in. We decidated to match that offer from the business to help support this worthy cause.

We have held two clinics; one on air-conditioning in April and another on Front Wheel Drive and McPherson Struts May 27th. The clinics were offered to our dealer and garage customers to keep them informed of the ever changing automotive industry and it's products.

A free filter survey program is available through us for all farmers and businesses giving them records of all their equipment and the filters used. This program also entitles them to purchase filters at reduced prices. In conjunction with this program we periodically hold Preventative-Maintenance Seminars to give information about the maintenance of equipment.

We feel that these services and clinics help our community and the consumer, making them worth of the efforts put forth to make them possible.

We would like to congratulate one of our employees, Wayne Wilder, on his graduation from COA. Wayne looks forward to a career in mechanical drafting or technical design.

As the owner of One Stop Auto Parts I take great pride in having three dedicated young men such as Wayne, James Cox and Cliff Haskett to serve this business and our community.

Barrow Creek Farm is source of wool

Barrow Creek Farm, Route 5, Box 343, Hertford is now a source of 100 percent wool yarns made from wool from North Carolina sheep. After shearing, the raw wool is scoured (cleaned), dyed, carded, and then spun into one, two, or three ply yarn. Wool is noted for its superior warmth, even when wet, a characteristic not found in synthetics.

The yarn is available in 14 colors, natural (undyed) sheep white, and natural light, medium, and dark grays. It comes in four ounce skeins or one pound cones for hand or machine knitting. This specially processed yarn retains some natural lanolin to give it "bounce", and softness and is machine or hand washable.

Owners, Marjorie and Walker Rayburn have over 250 breeding sheep on their farm. Although lamb prices have been very high in the past few years, the Rayburns have been looking for a way to increase their income from wool. Having the raw wool processed into a finished product, yarn, will hopefully achieve that aim.

The Rayburns also sell custom beef and lamb for people that want quality meat for their freezer. For information on any of these products, you may contact Marjorie or Walker at 426-7167.

Children Helping Children

What is it like to live in a place like Mexico or Ethiopia or Colombia? This question is of special interest to millions of students in Catholic schools and parishes across the country who belong to the Holy Childhood Association.

Television brings much of the world into their homes every night. For these children, however, learning about different cultures has taken on new importance. Language differences or great distances do not keep them from helping those their own ages who are less fortunate than they.

Why are these children so willing to go without a treat so that a child somewhere else in the world can have a glass of milk? Why will they skip a movie if it means helping to get a supply of vitamins on its way to an out-of-the-way village in a poor country?

Today's Americans have more money coming in than any other generation. From 1970 to 1983, per capita income, in real dollars, increased some 28%. In 1985, the average household income for managers and professional people had reached approximately $40,000.

Now, with so much more money at your disposal these days, it's no wonder that you're thinking more in terms of investing money than saving it in the traditional sense. That's why we offer you ways to earn money market rates with either one of our "checking" or "savings" accounts.

It's why we've developed our Asset Management Account® that combines money market rates, brokerage discounts, up to $50,000 in borrowing power and a single statement for all your investments. It's why we offer discounts up to 55% on commissions when you make your own decisions trading stocks and bonds. It's why we suggest that you keep your funds in our Money Market Accounts between trades, so they can keep earning more money for you. It's why we work with the people in our Personal Trust area to put big business ideas to work in your personal finances. They can help with tax-exempt and equity investments, along with investment management and other advisory services. It's why we offer Investor Option IRAs to lower your taxable income. In short, every day, we look for ways to put more muscle in your money. So come see just how a bank operates when it works to be the best bank in the neighborhood.
