Statewide Education

Dr. Ernest Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, was the keynote speaker at the 1986 Summer Leadership Conference for central office staff and principals of North Carolina school systems in Asheville July 8-11 and 13-16.

"Curriculum and Instruction: Roadmap for Learning" was this year's theme. Speakers at the sessions included international, national, state and local educators lecturing on the theme.

The conference was sponsored by the State Department of Public Instruction and brought together educators from local school districts and the state education agency.

Approximately 900 superintendents and supervisors attended the central office staff leadership conference July 8-11 and 1100 principals and assistant principals were present for their leadership conference July 13-16.

Pat Harrell, Superintendent of the Perquimans County School System, represented the county at the conference.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Craig Phillips, said

this conference will give educators opportunities to learn new instructional techniques and gain insight into education issues. "We think this conference is a good way to help prepare administrators for another year of working with children." Phillips will open and close both conferences with discussions of the coming school year and related subjects.

Ben Brunwin, Lloyd Ferguson, Melba Woodruff and Michael Annison also spoke. Brunwin, a prominent educator from England, spoke on the British educational model of empathy-based education. Ferguson, designer of a software program which was recently recognized by the U.S. Department of Education as one of the 100 software programs making the greatest contributions to education, dealt with using computers to support the Basic Education Plan. Woodruff, an Ohio State faculty member, discussed second language studies. Annison, president of Westrend Group and formerly vice-president of the Nasibit Group whose research was the basis for book Megatrends, spoke on the topic of "Education for the New Millennium."

DOLLMAKER—Mrs. John (Elsie) Lane, 85, a former Perquimans County resident, is pictured with her dolls she continues to make and sell since beginning her hobby over 30 years ago. Mrs. Lane and her husband moved to Spotsylvania, Virginia five years ago to live near their son, Kerry, and his family. Known in the Albemarle area as the "Doll Lady", Mrs. Lane has created dolls from corn shucks, dried apples, pecans and clothes pins as well as stuffed dolls of various sizes. Through the years, she has won numerous awards for her dolls and crafts. She claims her "babies" are her inspiration for life and will continue to make them as long as her health allows.

Both Mr. & Mrs. Lane cherish the memories of local residents and passerby who stopped at their farm on U.S. 17 South of Herford to shop for her crafts and his pumpkins.
