

Ten tips to help you invest in the stock market

Know when to make a move in the stock market by the position of the planets. Others depend on intuition. For those who would rather give common sense a try, the North Carolina Association of CPA's recommends some simple guidelines that can give you a winning advantage on Wall Street.

1. Don't invest more than you can afford to lose. CPAs remind you to keep enough money aside to meet your everyday needs as well as emergencies. Picking a winning stock won't help you if you are forced to sell before its price goes up. How much money to invest in the stock market depends on your financial situation, the nature of your other investments, your investment strategy and several other factors. Whatever you invest, to be safe, first build a financial base by putting your money into low-risk stocks. Then move on to growth, aggressive growth and speculative stocks only when you feel comfortable doing so.

2. Be sure to set some goals. Do you want to invest for short-term profit or long-term appreciation? Once you decide, buy only those stocks that fit your strategy.

3. Don't hold on to losers. No one can invest without running into at least some disappointing deals. The trick is to cut your losses by getting out before you lose too much money. Many investors find this hard to do.

After all, no one likes to take a loss, much less admit they picked a sour investment. Others become attached to a favorite stock and won't sell it. Remember, if a stock loses half its value, its price will have to double for you to break-even.

4. Diversify. One basic rule for gaining in the stock market is to diversify your holdings. Too many investments of different types, however, can be difficult to track. A good mutual fund is one recognized way to diversify.

5. Look to the future. Looking only at a stock's history is not the best way to measure future performance. You may find a clue in the past, but the business and economic forces the company faces in the next few years could hold much of the stock's fate. So take the time to consider what lies ahead. By the same token, don't wait until it is late to make a purchase.

6. Don't take tips. Rumors abound in investment circles as individuals hunt for those rare deals that will double or triple their money. The serious investor is not apt to act on questionable advice.

7. Be patient. While some investors are slow to sell, others are too quick to unload. Even the best investments need time to pay off. Don't panic or react too quickly to adverse news unless it reflects serious problems at the company and in its industry. The company may very well survive bad headlines.

8. Be realistic. If you are prudent, your goal will not be to make a lot of money in a short period of time. Those great buys that produce hefty overnight profits are rare. Better to follow your strategy closely, be patient, and enjoy the profits when they come.

9. Find a stockbroker you can trust. The personal chemistry between you and your broker, and subsequently how easy it is to communicate, can make the difference between success and failure. Find one who listens and understands your goals.

10. Buy what you know. Many people fail to tap their own expertise and knowledge when choosing stocks. If, for example, you are involved in the publishing industry and know all about the industry's problems and opportunities, don't buy stocks in the food industry where you may have less practical knowledge. If you are a regular customer at a large company, you may already know enough about the company to evaluate the prospects for its securities.

Purchased wisely, stocks can be an important part of your financial plan. But choosing the winners is not easy. It will help to follow a clear strategy and make careful choices. It is also important to choose a good financial planning team. A CPA can help you analyze the tax efforts of taking a gain or loss, and can help you with your overall financial plan.

Candlelight tour scheduled

Costumed interpreters will lead visitors to the Elizabeth II State Historic Site on a candlelight tour of the ship Sept. 12 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Illuminated by lanterns, the Elizabeth II will be the setting for Elizabethan revelry and demonstrations of 16th-century shipboard life. Mariners will instruct visitors in the fine art of knot tying and line whipping, and the ship's cook will demonstrate cooking methods of the 16th-century. The gift shop at the site will remain open until 9 p.m. Admission to the ship is $3 for adults, $2 for senior citizens and $1.50 for children.

The Elizabeth II, a state historic site, is an agency of the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources.

For more information, contact the Elizabeth II Site Historic Site at 919-473-1144.

Employees clean up litter

TARBORO—During the week of Sept. 14-20, Carolina Telephone employees in selected locations in the company's service area will be cleaning litter from the shoulders of the state's highways, as they did last fall and spring.

N.C. Department of Transportation crews, Department of Correction inmates, and volunteer citizens groups traditionally pick up roadside litter on dates in the spring and fall. This fall's campaign is being headed by the state's first lady, Dottie Martin.

Church News

Up River Friends Meeting will be having a homecoming day on September 14, 1986. Plans are underway to make this a very special day at Up River. Sunday school will begin at 10:00 a.m., and the Worship service will include special music, as well as a time for our Faith Promise Commitments. There will be a covered dish lunch at 1:00 p.m. We are looking forward to greeting all our friends who have worshipped with us in the past. It will be a day of reminiscing over past blessings as well as praising our Lord for present blessings. We extend a special invitation for you to be with us on this homecoming day. If you are unable to attend, we would welcome a letter of greeting, which will be shared with the meeting.
