COA announces dean's list

Ten Perquimans County residents were among 109 College of The Albemarle students who earned scholastic averages meriting the inclusion of their names on the Dean's List at the end of the Winter Quarter. Norman L. Norfleet, COA dean of instruction, released the names of the honor students this week.

The list represents nine percent of the overall winter enrollment of 1,226 curriculum students at the community college. Perquimans scholars comprised 9.1 percent of those qualifying for the recognition.

Norfleet explained that in order to become eligible, students must complete a minimum of 12 quarter-hours of course work with a 3.5 grade point average, and have no grade below "C." The highest possible GPA attainable is a 4.0, he said.

Perquimans residents recognized for their academic excellence include Shelia Best, Levi Brothers, Jr., Laurence Drozdowski, Phillis Foxwell, Eric James, Teresa Johnson, Mary Lane, Yosiah Lord, Jill Sims, and Crystal Wyatt.

Scholarships available to students

Five Rotary Foundation scholarships for a year of overseas collegiate study during the 1988-89 academic year will be awarded by Rotary District 771 to applicants from northeastern North Carolina. Each scholarship is valued at $12,000 to $14,000 and pays for travel, tuition, and living costs.

Applications must be made through a local Rotary club. In the Hertford area, information is available from Rotarians of Hertford.

Club deadline for receiving scholarship applications is July 15, according to Dr. Roy Lindahl of Chapel Hill, who is Rotary Foundation chairman for District 771.

Additional information and application forms may be obtained by writing Dr. Lindahl at 305 Clayton Rd., Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

Four categories of scholarships are available, according to District 771 Governor John Hatcher of Cary. These are graduate, undergraduate, teacher of handicapped, and journalism.

During their year of overseas study, recipients are provided a Rotarian counselor who is available whenever needed. Scholars often speak at Rotary clubs and before other groups in the country they visit.

Counselors also are named to work with the students prior to their departure for overseas study.

The Rotary Foundation, which is funded by contributions by Rotarians around the world, provides over 900 scholarships for overseas study each year, more than any other foundation in the world.

Minority student honored for academic achievement at UNC

CHAPEL HILL—One hundred sixty-eight minority students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill have been honored for outstanding academic achievement.

Students with at least 3.0 grade point averages were recognized as well as undergraduates with the highest grade point averages in their class.

"It is very encouraging that the number of minority students reaching the 3.0 level has increased tremendously," said Hayden B. Renwick, associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at UNC and director of the Office of Student Counseling, event sponsor.

"I'd like to think that this type of program will instill a lot of pride in minority students reaching the 3.0

level has increased tremendously," said Hayden B. Renwick, associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at UNC and director of the Office of Student Counseling, event sponsor.

"I'd like to think that this type of program will instill a lot of pride in minority students and encourage them to reach higher academic success."

Special awards were given to students with the highest academic average in each undergraduate class. Recipients were freshmen Donna Marie Epps of Charlotte and Tonya Elizabeth Locke of Raleigh; Patrice Monique Jones, a sophomore from Richmond, Va.; Luchina Lenay Fisher, a junior from Spring Lake; and seniors Letitia Towanda Mason of Chesapeake, Va., and Evelma Sue White of Wake Forest.

Sixteen students were recognized for maintaining 3.0 averages throughout their collegiate careers. Five minority advisers were recognized for the Top Minority Adviser Award. The latter were Alicia Diane Delaney, a junior from Fayetteville; Yvette Renee Douglas, a junior from Durham; Violet Bonetta Johnson, a senior from Winston-Salem; Lisa Regina Jones, a sophomore from Fayetteville; and Richard James White III, a sophomore from Asheville. White also was named top minority adviser of the year.

Granette Allene Trent, daughter of Vivian S. Trent of 100 Hyde Park, Hertford was also recognized for her achievements.

Art classes take trips

In celebration of youth art month in March the art classes at Perquimans High School, and some students who take art at Union School recently went on some field trips.

On March 26th, the Art I classes traveled to Norfolk, Va. to the Chrysler Museum. They visited the museum and worked on a worksheet which helped them to analyze artworks.

On March 28th and March 29th, the Art Club traveled to Washington, D.C. on a field trip. 35 students and eight adults visited various museums for the two days.

The trips were enjoyed by all the students, and proved to be a good educational experience.

Area band selling tickets

The band boosters are currently selling chances for a painting which will be raffled off at the 1987 Arts Extravaganza.

The painting was donated to the band boosters by the local artist, Sharon Chappell. The painting is currently on display at the Blanchard Building in downtown Hertford.

Chances for the painting are .50 cents each. Proceeds raised by ticket sales will benefit the spring and fall band programs in the county.
