Museum to offer workshop

ELIZABETH CITY, NC—The Museum of the Albemarle's children's workshops will be starting in August. Workshops have been created that will give students the chance to explore all the neatest things that make this region special. They're designed for a range of ages, kindergarten through ninth grade. So come on out and spend the day at the Museum!

Workshop one is dealing with the Pirates! Blackbeard will be at the Museum at 10:00 a.m., Thursday, August 6th. His program will last until 11:00 a.m. and is for students grades K-3. There will be a 50 cent fee.

On Thursday, August 13th, kids in grades K-8 interested in marine life can come to the Museum at 11:00 a.m. for a field trip. Marine biologist from the Elizabeth City office in North Carolina Marine Fisheries will give a presentation at the Museum showing kids how to "read" fish scales, and showing different kinds of critters and such. We will then board a bus to go to the Edenton National Fish Hatchery for a tour. We will return to the Museum by 3:00 p.m. Students need to bring a lunch, and there is a charge of $2.50.

A geology trip to the beach is planned on Thursday, August 20th with ECSU professor Maurice Powers. It is planned for students in 4th-8th grades. They will leave the Museum at 11:00 am to travel down to the beach to learn about wave action, beach erosion and movement, and other phenomena. They will return to the Museum at 5:00 pm. Again, everyone must bring a lunch. The fee of $4.50 covers transportation costs.

The fourth and final workshop of the season is on Indian tool making. Archaeologist Steve Claggett, from Raleigh will teach students how to produce stone tools, as well as discuss the use of other materials in the area, and how and why they may have been used. There are two different sessions for this program on Tuesday, August 25th. The first session is at 10:00 a.m. and is for students in grades 4th-6th. The second session is at 1:00 p.m. for students grades 7th-9th. There is a 50 cent fee for each child.

This is a great chance to live things up just when summer is beginning to get boring. It also is a great program for kids at daycare or at clubs who need a change from the same old thing there. If you have any questions or wish to register your child or children call Ellen Schwartz at 335-1453 or 335-2987.

Pictured above is a tomato grown by Hal Locke of Snug Harbor. The tomato weighed in at over 2.25 pounds and is a beefmaster variety tomato. The tomato also measured five and one half inches in diameter. This is Mr. Locke's first year gardening. His plants were fertilized with Miracle Grow plant food.

College of the Albemarle announces Spring dean's list

Fourteen Perquimans County residents were among 120 College of the Albemarle students who earned scholastic averages meriting the inclusion of their names on the Dean's List at the end of the Spring Quarter. Norman L. Norfleet, COA dean of instruction, released the names of the honor students this week.

The list represents 9.3 percent of the overall spring enrollment of $1293 curriculum students at the community college. Perquimans scholars comprised 11.6 percent of those qualifying for the recognition.

Norfleet explained that in order to become eligible, students must complete a minimum of 12 quarter-hours of course work with a 3.5 grade point average, and have no grade below "C." The highest possible GPA attainable is a 4.0, he said.

Magna Carta on display

"Roads to Liberty: Magna Carta to the Constitution" is an exhibit in a mobile trailer which contains the priceless Lincoln Cathedral Magna Carta, the "great charter" signed by King John of England in 1215. The exhibit also contains original or copies of the Declaration of Independence, the Emancipation Proclamation; facsimiles of the Mayflower Compact, the Articles of Confederation, and the Northwest Ordinance; rare coins, pictures, maps, and newspapers of the Colonies period.

The "Roads to Liberty: Magna Carta to the Constitution" trailer itself is an impressive sight—an 18-wheel, red-white-and blue rolling museum measuring 40' x 13' (not including entrance and exit ramps). Dossants travel with the exhibit, and they assist local hosts and hostesses in greeting the public and showing them through the trailer.

In order to avoid long lines, free admission tickets will be available at the tour site for certain times to enter the exhibit. Tryon Palace will be open (there is an admission charge to tour inside the Palace, but access to the grounds is free) as will the colonial John Wright Stanly House next door.
