Halloween, hobgoblins, and injuries

With the end of October here, the sights and sounds of Halloween are more evident. Pumpkins are carved and kids are preparing their costumes for the trick or treat festivities. Even though there is a lot of fun associated with all hallows eve, it is also a time to exercise caution.

Accidents, leading to mild and severe head injuries and other mishaps, can occur if certain rules are ignored. To ensure that you have a Happy Halloween, here is a list of safety tips to follow:

1. Wear a bright costume that can be seen by drivers and fellow trick or treaters. If you are wearing a dark costume, paste some shiny, reflective tape to your clothes.
2. Don't walk on the street, stick to the sidewalk. When you do have to cross the street, make sure you look in all directions.
3. Don't wear a mask or a large hat that might obscure your vision.
4. Try to go trick or treating while it is still light out.
