TINTED CONTACTS FOR EVERYBODY

For years hard lens wearers have been enjoying the advantages of tinted lenses. Tinting does a lot more than enhance the color of your eyes. From a practical standpoint it makes them easier to retrieve when dropped, easier to locate when discentered, and reduces the light sensitivity and glare that may occur with clear hard-lens wearing.

However, because of special considerations, tinted soft lenses were not available in this country until 1981. A special tinting process had to be developed and tested which was absolutely safe, reliable, and cosmetically perfect. Tinted soft contacts have a clear border and clear center so that the lens appears normal on the eye and corresponds to the pupil. The remaining "iris" area is then tinted, using a special process that permanently bonds the color to the lens. The color is safe, will not bleach out, and holds up under either chemical or heat sterilization. So now all contact lens wearers can enjoy the advantages of tinted contacts.
