Home Economics agents plan educational tour on wheels

Home Economics agents in Camden, Currituck, Gates, Pasquotank and Perquimans Counties have planned an educational tour-onwheels to the Furniture Market at High Point as a special highlight of the "Create Your Castle Around Your Cash' house furnishings seminar held recently.

The itinerary will include a tour of Alderman's Photography Studio where furniture and accessories are photographed for leading national magazines. Thayer-Coggin Furniture Factory and Showroom -tour of the factory where furniture is constructed and view their display showroom, and a guided tour of the Market Square Furniture Showroom. Also a stop will be made in the Burlington area on the trip home.

The educational trip includes tour admissions, hotel and trans-portation by chartered bus for a cost of $50 per person. Priority will be given to participants attending the "Create Your Castle Around Your Cash" seminar. Currently a few spaces are still available for anyone interested in attending this two-day educational experience. For information, call the North Carolina Agricultural Extension service in your local county or call Perquimans County Extension Office, at 426-5428 or 426-7697.

Dismal Swamp Center celebrates first birthday

On April 20, 1989, the travel industry in northeastern North Carolina received a major "shot in the arm" with the opening of the Dismal Swamp Canal Visitors-Welcome Center. The Center is located on Highway 17, on the banks of the historic Dismal Swamp, just three miles from the Virginia state line. Since the Canal is an alternate route on the Intracoastal Waterway, the Center welcomes both highway traffic and boat traffic, making it unique indeed.

The Center will celebrate its first anniversary on Friday, April 20. A special ceremony will be held from 1-2 p.m., with Representative Vernon James as guest speaker. Our special guest from 2-4 p.m. will be Jim "Catfish" Hunter. For a donation of $5, you will be awarded a autographed baseball from "Catfish."

There will be boats on the Canal, live music, and refreshments. So bring your family and come help us celebrate our first birthday.

Home, garden tour plans promise wonderful day

The home and garden tour/ve-randah art show planned for April 21 by the Perquimans County Restoration Association promises to be a wonderful day. Patrons are asked to stroll down the dogwoodlined Church and Front streets where some of Hertford's finest architectural examples are located next to the inspiring Perquimans River. Tickets can be purchased at the Chamber of Commerce or Newbold-White complex. The $10 ticket includes the tour, entrance to the Newbold-White site and lunch at the Perquimans Center.

OM team takes second place in state competition

The Perquimans Middle School Odyssey of the Mind Team that placed first in regional competition in Greenville with their project "Strucutres in Harmony" earned second place honors in state competition in Charlotte Saturday.

The team was required to build a structure that would support weight from less than one-half ounce of balsa wood. In competition, the stucture held 122 pounds.

The winning team was made up of sixth graders Mark Swindell, Kristy Roberson and Jaime Stone; seventh graders Matthew Byrum and Christopher Gregory and eighth graders Adrian Frierson and Michael Clinkscales. Bob Clinkscales was the coach, assisted by Deborah Byrum and Roy Reed. Community Schools Coordinator Jeanie Umphlett is the administrative support person for the pro-

The team members were very positive about their OM experience, which encourages creative thinking and promotes problemsolving skills.

"It makes us think," said Mark Swindell.

Kristy Roberson agreed. "It opens your mind up. You can think more," she said.

Michael Clinkscales looks to the future when he thinks of his two years in OM, saying that researching projects and meeting other students with similar interests makes students aware of career opportunities, and exposes them to work in technical fields.

Although the students agreed that OM is fun, they all said that it is a lot of work.

"We tested a lot of stuff" trying to design the structure, said Mi chael Clinkscales.

Christopher Gregory added, "We had to read the book a whole lot to make sure we were in the rules." Any variation from the procedures and guidelines set forth by the OM of the entire project, or can cause a team to lose valuable points.

In only its second year in Perquimans, the local teams have performed incredibly well. Last year, a team from the middle school won first place in the state program can cause disqualification championships and went on to compete in the international championships in Boulder, Colo-

> To do so well on the regional and state level in only two years of participation in the program is a testament to the hard work of the students, parent-coaches and community assistants, according to Mrs. Umphlett.

While the program was endorsed by the local school board, most funds for projects and transporta-tion are donated by the parents, along with the many hours it takes to prepare for competition.

OM has definitely had a positive impact on many Perquiman students, said Mrs. Umphlett. Working in small groups with other students who share the same interests and interacting with adults in an informal setting can be a great learning experience for children,

All students who wish to participate in OM are tested to determine who will qualify for the limited number of OM slots available. The program is so popular that there are more children interested than openings in the program. The children are also scored on interviews.

Each team was made up of three sixth graders, two seventh graders and two eighth graders. Working together across grade levels is one of the positive effects of the program, Mrs. Umphlett pointed out.

It takes approximately six weeks to plan, design and test the final project, according to the students. There may still be fine-tuning needed to change an acceptable project into a winning entry in com-

Parent-coach Bob Clinkscales was very enthusiastic about his experience working with the team.

''These guys were super,''
Clinkscales said beaming. He said he was very proud of the work ache was very proud of the work ac-complished and maturity displayed by the group as they together solved the "Harmony" problem.

The eighth graders said that they hope the OM program is expanded next year to the high school level locally so that they will be able to be involved for four more years.

Wilkins named Daily Advance Female Athlete of Year for winter sports season

Perquimans senior basketball stand-out Sonja Wilkins was named Female Athlete of the Year in winter sports by The Daily Advance recently. She was chosen from among female athletes at Camden, Currituck, Northeastern Albemarle Aca-Northeastern, Albemarle Aca-

Wilkins was the Lady Pirates' conductor this season, helping to orchestrate a 21-6 record, a win in the Albemarle Conference Tournament and a second place spot in the region. She could step up the tempo on the fast break, and was equally adept at slowing it down to a four corners pace.

Although she could make a lay in almost any situation, Wilins was a team player. She new she was one of five on the loor from Perquimans, and beause of this, she tallied 157 assists for the season.

Hertford Council reviews drug control application

By NANCY ROYDEN-CLARK

A grant pre-application was discussed during Monday night's Hertford Town Council meeting. It is currently in the preliminary stages on planning.

The grant, which is under the auspices of the Governor's Crime Commission, requests funds for drug control and system improvement. The full project name is presently the Perquimans County-Hertford Police Department Joint Jurisdictional Narcotics Task Force.

The Perquimans County Sheriff's Department is listed as the implementing agency, with Sheriff Joe L. Lothian as project director.

Total federal project costs for the first year of the grant are $28,500, and $22,500 for the second year, according to the preliminary preapplication. Application match would come from Perquimans County and the Town of Hertford in the amount of $17,000, or 25% of the grant. Hertford would pay $4,760 the first year and $3,740 the second

The $68,000 for the total budget is earmarked mainly for equipment expenses.$3,000 is noted for training seminars and travel.

Police chief Aubrey Sample plans to look into the possibility of naming the town of Winfall specifically on the application.

The council discussed the continuing problem of residents who do not have city tags for their vehicles. Officers have been instructed to stop anyone they see who is not complying with the tag ordinance.

Hertford Mayor William "Bill' Cox discussed a $1000 adjustment entry to the general fund.

"$1,000 balances the budget. In the last six months we failed to catch it. It's been corrected," said

In other business:

· Council discussed allowing two 'Welcome to Hertford' signs on ei-ther side of Church Street. One sign would be near Jimmy's Barbeque at 203 North Church Street. The signs would have the words 'Coca-Cola' as a part of the sign. They would cover the street from side to side and are to be placed or removed at the discretion of the council. They will be supplied by the Coca-Cola company.

· A request has been made to extend C-2 zoning by 75 feet on Don Juan Road. A public hearing will be held on April 26 at 7:30 to discuss zoning.

 Hertford resident Carlen Brown expressed concern over glass which she said fell from the second story of the Broughton Buliding, located on the corner of Market and Church streets. The mayor stated that the matter would be handled to the full extent of the law. Council members discussed boarding windows of the building.

· The mayor announced plans to attend a meeting to discuss the progress of Interstate 17 between Hertford and Edenton.

· It was announced that the Town of Hertford will close offices on Monday after the Easter weekend. Trash will continue as normal on

• The Walking Tour was an-nounced on April 21 and members of the council were urged to particpate by the mayor.

The John F. Blair Publishing

Company will hold a reception for Claiborne Young, author of the book entitled, 'Cruising Guide to Coastal North Carolina' at Mariner's Wharf in Elizabeth City on April 12 at 4:00 p.m. The event will be hosted by the Rose Buddies.

The Head Start program invited council members to an awards banquet to be held on Friday, April 27 at 7:00 at the Kermit E. White Graduate Center.

N.C. tax filing deadline nears filing deadline, approximately 1.8 million N. C. taxpayers have filed

"We expect one million more to file by the deadline on April 16, but some taxpayers may need additional time to file their returns," said John E. Burke, district director of the Internal Revenue Service.

"Taxpayers who need time beyond the April 16, 1990 tax deadline will need to complete Form 4868 sion of Time to File U.S. Individual Income Tax Return, and submit any balance due with the request for extension," said Burke. "The extension to file a tax return is not an extension of time to pay any tax that may be due."

The automatic extension granted by completing the Form 4868 is for four months and extends the filing

Brian Center hosts successful egg hunt

April showers did not dampen the fun at Brian Center Friday afternoon when about 65 children arrived to hunt eggs on the lawn at the Junior-Senior Easter Egg Hunt.

Coordinated by The Perquimans Weekly, and sponsored by Brian Center, American Legion Post No. 126, Joseph R. Haskett, Jr., Chowan Hospital, Woodard's Phar-macy, Marta's Style Sharing, Cannon Cleaners, Hertford United Methodist Youth, Swindell Funeral Home, Perquimans County Jay-cees, AARP Chapter 4118, Dr. Robert Earl Lane and staff, Albemarle Hospital, Town of Hertford and Dozier's Florist, the event brought together the young and young-atheart for an afternoon of fun, fellowship and food.

Apricot, Inc. and Don Juan Man-ufacturing teamed up with Brian Center to provide cup cakes, ice cream, punch and of course, jelly beans, after all the eggs were found. The eggs were provided courtesy of the Parksville Ruritan

The eggs were all hidden before 2:30, the tables were set up on the sunporch and everyone was ready for the onslaught of children. A rain shower at 3:30 sent several adults scampering across the yard to re-trieve the hidden eggs. By the 4 p.m., the clouds had rolled away and the sun was once again brightly shining. The eggs were hidden for a second time while the children played games in the dining room. The 2- and 3-year-olds were allowed to hunt eggs in the living room, and as a special treat to both the visitors and Brian Center residents, eggs were hidden in the residents' laps in the activity room to facilitate interaction between the children and the residents. By 5 p.m., Brian Center was back to normal and the residents were preparing for dinner. "That was so much fun. I enjoyed that," said one resident as she was wheeled into the dining room for her evening That's what the event was all about.

Children scrambled across the lawn at Brian Center Friday looking for brightly colored Easter eggs. Participants and organizers reported a successful, fun-filled afternoon was enjoyed by all who attended.
