Proctor attends state Farm Bureau conference

Numbering over 120, North Carolina Farm Bureau women representing counties from across the state, met recently in Raleigh for their annual Women's Conference.

Representing Perquimans County was Dolna Mae Proctor.

In addressing the group, North Carolina Farm Bureau President W.B. Jenkins praised the accomplishments of women in the organization. He said, "As our world has changed, so has the important role that women play in today's Farm Bureau. I am proud to see Farm Bureau women active in all phases of policy development and leadership at the county, state and national levels."

While women are active in all areas of concern to the organization, special emphasis is placed on community relations, educational development in rural and urban areas and farm safety.

Conference seminars were conducted to help women learn to work more effectively with local news media, promote crime prevention in their communities and understand areas of critical concern to agriculture in 1993.

The conference is designed to give Farm Bureau women from diverse parts of the state a chance to meet, share concerns and develop plans of action for the year.

4-H horse club organizes

Are you interested in horses, but don't have one? Do you have a horse, but don't have anyone to help you learn more about horses?

Well, here's your chance to solve your problem. A new 4-H horse club is being organized in Perquimans County. A meeting will be held on Saturday, April 10 from 11 a.m.- noon at the Perquimans Cooperative Extension Office to see if there is sufficient interest to form the club.

This club will serve children age 9 and up. Interested parents should call Debbie Owens at 428-8318 by Wednesday, April 7.

Residents ride through storm in comfort

By BETH FINNEY
 Activities Director
 Brian Center/Hertford

And the March winds do blow and blow and blow!

We here at Brian Center were all safe, sound and warm. We were some of the fortunate few who had electricity (an emergency generator that won't quit), heat, hot water and even steadfast volunteers who made sure the residents had their Bingo and social hour. Life went on and the residents are still talking about the big storm, the wind, rain and snow, but we thank God and all those who worked for making our lives comfortable and secure.

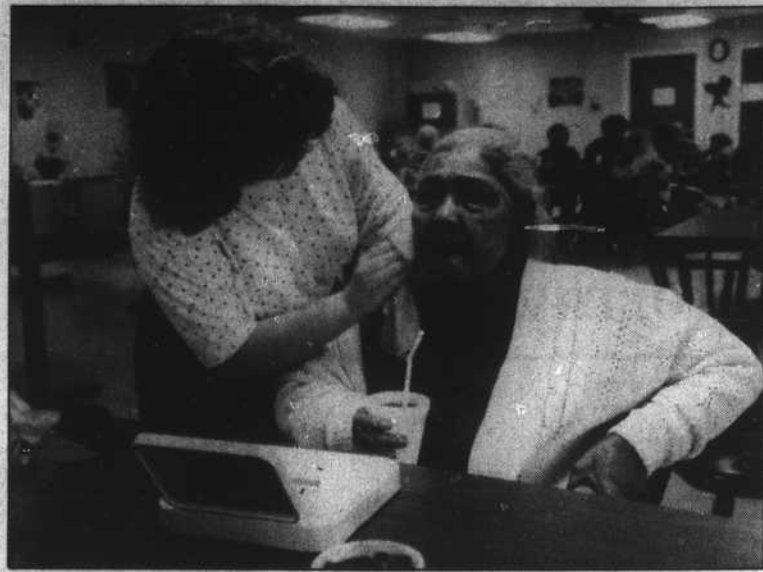

This week we'll have much to look forward to in celebrations. Wednesday night we once again have the privilege of hearing music by Country Chapel. It is so good to know we've got these people to come in once a month who unfailingly supply our residents with their talents and love. On Thursday at 2:30, we have our March birthday party and entertainment by the Snug Harbor Community group, an event we all look forward to. Friday at 3:00, our ladies will once again be treated to facials by Stephanie, a Mary Kay consultant. Stephanie has come out before and has committed herself to us once each month. Our residents love this pampering and we thank Stephanie ever so much. St. Patty's Day is Wednesday, March 17, but we'll be wearing our greens on Thursday for the birthday party.

For the past seven weeks, I've had to take a three-hour trip to Smithfield to go to school for my certification. This meant getting up at 5 a.m., on the road by 6, a three-hour drive, seven hours of school and a three-hour drive back. I have finally finished this course and am now a certified activities coordinator. I have many people to thank for their faith in me and the help they have given. A special thanks goes to Jeannie Houlihan, Bobby Ziemba, Elizabeth Cayton, Elizabeth Bateman, Nancy Morgan, Joe France and Connie Thomas for giving me this opportunity to learn new ideas and ways of implementing them. And to all of the residents, maybe now things will get back to normal and I'll be of much more service to you.
