Lenoir has the opportunity now to say whether she will take a step forward as a municipality or standstill. If she votes for bonds and puts in a Water and Sewerage system with street improvements, she is simply doing a duty to her self and the rising generations. If she does not vote the bonds it will be a simple neglect of duty.

On our recent trip West we were struck with the intensive farming done in that part of the country.

The Orange Groves of California are cultivated as carefully as a garden. Not a weed is allowed to grow. The people say the land is too valuable to let it grow weeds and they want all the substance to go to the nourishment of the orange trees. Ten to twenty acres of that fine irrigated land makes a good sized farm and by careful thorough cultivations they make big crops.

In as much as some misunderstanding seems to exist in regard to the position of the News, in reference to the Bowling Alley discussion now going on in our columns, we deem it proper to say a few words in regard thereto. All intelligent persons are aware that a paper is not responsible for the views and statements of its correspondents and it frequently does not sanction the propriety of certain matters being agitated in the papers, yet the columns of a paper are, in a sense public property and if its readers wish to air their views in them, we feel that they should be allowed to do so, provided always the discussion is carried on decently and in the proper spirit. In the present instance a matter of considerable interest is being discussed and we trust it will result in a better feeling among the parties and a broader understanding of the views of all interested. The News is in no way taking sides in the matter and is only willing that the discussion be continued on the ground that it be free from personal abuse and improper criticism, trusting only good will result therefrom.

Things Good and Bad in Old Caldwell.
 Good things: Good graded school building in Lenoir, and a number of good public school buildings in the county. As to the teachers in these schools I put this question: Are the teachers in the public schools in the county districts as good as them in the Lenoir Graded school? If not why not? Are the district commissioners careful enough in selecting teachers both from a moral and mental standpoint? I fear not. Is more money needed in order to secure better teachers? Would not more young men and women prepare themselves for teaching if better prices were being paid for teaching? Would not local taxation solve the problem in country districts? Next to paying the simple expenses of the preached gospel what better investment can a people make of their money than to put it into the mental training of their children? Another good thing I noticed was good church schools. I believe in church schools. Why? Because men and women are divinely built. Three stories high. First story, the bodily; second story the mental; third story the spiritual. The states can only educate two stories; the physical and mental. The church alone educates the trine man educates him for Christian citizenship while the state educates for citizenship only. However let their be no strife between church and State, through its public school system educate as far as it will for good citizenship but let Christian parents see that their children are educated for the kingdom of heaven as well as for the State.

I am proud of old Caldwell as the place of my birth. May she ever maintain her noble record for intelligent citizenship. Next week I will write on two bad things in my old county. I write not for controversy but only to stimulate to the best in things.

Kansas City St Louis Home.

We left Denver on the evening of July 2nd, over the Union Pacific and spent the glorious 4th, traveling over the plains of Kansas. Day after day we found us in Western Kansas among the wheat fields that stretch out in all directions as far as the eye can reach, harvesting was on and notwithstanding it was a national holiday, many laborers were in the harvest fields. The wheat was cut usually by a heading machine, operated by one man with 3 to 5 horses. The machine was driven in front of the team and cuts the heads of the wheat and about one foot of the stalk. This fell upon an endless canvas belt or conveyor and was carried to a wagon which is driven along side of the reaper. One man drives the wagon and another packs the wheat into a large frame bed 12 to 20 feet long and five feet deep. When the wagon bed is full the wheat is thrown up in long ricks, not stacked as we do in this country. Three men and 5 to 7 horses will do the work of many hands in the old way with scythes and cradles. The machines will cut from 12 to 24 feet swath at a time and is manipulated by one man who rides on the machine and drives. As we came on east many hobos or tramps, who had gone to that part of the country to work in the harvest, were seen along the road and at every stop they would try to get aboard our train. In western Kansas there are many miles of plank fences along the railway to protect it from snow drifts in winter.

When we came into the vicinity of Junction City, Fort Riley, Manhattan and Topeka, we saw fine fields of corn and very fertile lands along the Kaw river valley although the river was up and much of the fine corn and wheat was under water. At many places the people were celebrating the 4th by large gatherings with horse racing, ball games, speakings, etc. There is much fine farming land in Kansas and there are numerous thriving looking towns and cities.

We reached Kansas City in the late afternoon where we took supper and had about an hour to look around. Kansas City is a big hustling place with a large business and everything on the go. The large packing houses and cattle pens there cover acres of ground and there is a great deal of wealth there. Our car was placed on the Wabash tracks at that place and we came over that line a pleasant run to St Louis, arriving there on the 5th about 10 a. m. We did not see much of Missouri on the return trip, though what we did see was fine farming land with endless corn fields.

At St Louis our pleasant party disbanded each of us returning to our homes by different routes after a months most pleasant association. During this time we made many new and pleasant acquaintances and the memory of the trip will ever be a pleasant one. Our special train in the months time traveled nearly 9,000 miles over various lines of railway and we were at all times shown pleasing and appreciated courtesies by the railroad people.

Our run from St Louis with a brief stop at Asheville with the North Carolina Press Association was a pleasant one and we arrived in Lenoir on July 7th, lacking only a day of five weeks from the time we started.

During this time we traveled a distance of about 10,000 miles and in seventeen states and territories without any accidents or mishaps to us in any way mar the pleasure of the outing.

IMPRESSIONS.
 Oklahoma and Indian Territory are developing at a phenomenally rapid rate and there are farming lands there in abundance to be had cheap. The cities and towns are growing up like mushrooms and there are many opportunities for making money there. Texas is an empire of itself and one can find any kind of land he wants in her borders, black waxy bottoms that will make two bales of cotton to the acre, to arid rocky plains that only serve to hold the world together. In California with her 1100 miles of sea coast stretching farther than from Charleston to Boston, one can find any kind of climate and soil he wants. It is a state of great wealth and big things and "to get in the push" there one must have capital to invest.

Oregon has a great deal of fine country, so has Idaho, Washington, Utah and Colorado and with irrigation they will support a hundred times the people they now have.

They all want immigrants and there are many opportunities for making money in any of these states if a man strikes it right. The people of the west are the greatest advertisers on earth and spare neither time nor money to tell of their advantages and opportunities. Every man who succeeds is extensively advertised and lauded, while the hundreds who fail are not mentioned.

Taking all things into consideration, if a man is making a comfortable living and enjoying good health in North Carolina it is not wise for him to break up and go west. If he will use the same energy here that he has to use out there he will do well and enjoy life more. If however he wants to accumulate dollars and is willing to do almost anything to accomplish that end, he will find many more opportunities in the west than are to be found in the older states. But as far as we are concerned, we would not exchange Western North Carolina for any of the west we saw.

Show the Appearance of Evil.

In the eastern part of our country there lived a man on a hill just outside the city limits, who had his place of business in the city. It was his custom to go to and from his place of business on the cars to a little station at the foot of the hill on which he lived. His servant would drive him to the station in his carriage in the morning and meet him with his carriage in the evening and drive him home. As the road leading from the station to his home was a very dangerous one, leading for the most part of the way close to the brow of the hill, he felt that he could no longer trust his present servant as a driver, so he advertised for a new servant. On the day appointed three men presented themselves for the position. He told the first one to take the carriage and drive to the station and show how well he could drive. The man drove just as near the precipice as he thought possible, but reached the station in safety. He supposed so doing he could best show his skill as a driver. The second was asked to make the drive. He supposed that in order to excel the first, he must drive nearer the precipice, so he made the wheels of the carriage go a little nearer, the rocks and clods were pushed by the wheels down over the precipice into the valley below, but he reached the station in safety. The third man was asked to make the trial. He first examined the carriage and harness to see if all were in perfect condition. He then started to drive to the station, but instead of driving as near to the precipice as possible, he kept just as far from it as possible. The man at once said he was the man he wanted. "I want" said he "the man who will keep as far from danger as possible." There is safety only in keeping as far from danger as possible. We should "shun the very appearance of evil."

If a man begins to court trouble, he usually ends by marrying it.

A Spunky Girl.

Here is a rainbow bubble floating on the surface of the social swim in this city. A short time since a girl from another part of the State was the guest of a leading family, a girl full of life and chic, but with plenty of hard sense, and well able to take care of herself. One of the "golden youths" invited her to take a buggy ride, and after they had proceeded on their way a hundred yards or so, he turned to her and said, with unpardonable impatience and freedom: "Miss—, I have heard that you are pretty fast." "Oh, you have eh?" she replied, flashing a look at him. "Hand me the reins, and I'll show you how fast I am." He relinquished the reins, supposing that she would put the horse out at a 240 gait, to illustrate her rapidity. On the contrary, she deliberately made a circle, turning the vehicle around, drove back to the gate of her friend's house, jumped out, swept her escort a formal courtesy, and disappeared leaving him to pursue his ride alone. It may be imagined that the discomfited young man took good pains not to circulate this episode, but the story has got out and the general verdict is, "Served him right."

It meets and corrects the above conditions, by acting as a pleasant cathartic on the bowels—expels all colds from the system and cures all coughs, croup, whooping cough, LaGrippe, bronchitis, etc. J. THE LAND OF POSSIBILITIES.

"There is not an idle man in the Territory," writes Mr. W. E. Curtis, the eminent newspaper correspondent.

Of what other section of the country could this be said? Is it not indicative of opportunity? More hands are needed in Indian and Oklahoma Territories and Texas to develop the wonderful possibilities there. There is a demand for every kind of skilled and ordinary labor. There are splendid chances for young men in all the trades and professions. There are vast areas of unimproved land only awaiting the man like you to make them yield the wonderful crops of which they are capable. There are hundreds of towns in which there are openings for mills, manufacturing plants, small stores, newspapers, lumber yards, etc.

The possibilities were never brighter for men of action—men who are seeking to better their condition. In five years' time these possibilities will not be as attractive as today. You should go now while the prices of farming lands are reasonable and investment opportunities are not overdone. Why not locate in a progressive locality and grow up with the country? It will certainly pay you to investigate conditions whether you emigrate to this land of possibilities or not.

I can give you many valuable pointers of business chances and of locations where prospects are the brightest. Write me—tell me what you want, how much you have to invest. I will give you information and gladly assist you in getting in touch with the opportunity.
