FRIDAY, MARCH 23, 1906.

Some people and parties dwell with great delight on the achievements of their forefathers and boast of the principles they stand for, instead of grasping the golden opportunities of the present and doing something themselves.

Operator Fell Asleep.

Pueblo, Col., March 17.—Twenty-two dead and 22 injured to-night make up the latest estimate of the casualties in the wreck of two Denver & Rio Grande passenger trains at Adobe, Col., Friday morning.

Two telegraph operators are now held chiefly responsible for the disaster. A coroner's jury will begin an investigation of the accident on Monday.

All the injured, it is believed will recover. It is not likely that the remains of any of the other victims can be identified.

It developed to-day that Lively, who was the regular day operator at Swallows, had, besides performing his other duties, worked on Thursday night for William Van Deusen, the night operator.
