COURT TO HEAR MIX CASES SOON

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to rule this term on lower court actions which would integrate Detroit area schools by transferring pupils between the inner city and the white suburbs. At least six other cities face similar situations. Both U.S. District Judge Stephen J. Roth and the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals have endorsed the transfer approach which would rely heavily on busing and has created controversy in Michigan and elsewhere. HOWEVER, the Supreme Court announced it would hear oral arguments on an appeal from the lower court rulings brought by Michigan state authorities and 42 of the suburban communities. A written decision is expected before the court adjourns in June. Indianapolis, Hartford, Conn., Wilmington, Del., Buffalo, Atlanta and Louisville are currently involved in litigation aimed at achieving greater integration by city-suburb pupil transfers.

IN RESPONSE to a suit initiated by the NAACP, Roth ordered a study be made of interchanging students in Detroit schools, which are 64 per cent black, with those of more than 50 suburbs, including affluent Grosse Pointe and Birmingham.

The appeals court modified Roth's orders somewhat but generally upheld his finding the city and suburban schools should be integrated. He was instructed to hold hearings to work out precise student transfer plans and other details.

THE SUPREME Court last term handed down a 4-4 split decision on a Virginia case,

Senior Citizens Sale-A-Thon Planned Dec. 4

by Albert A. Campbell

THOMASVILLE-- Gibson's Discount Center of Thomasville is again offering a senior citizen's sale-a-thon which is designed to increase the purchasing power of senior citizens' income with Christmas so near it could not have come at a better time.

The sale will be held on December 4th, from 8:00 a.m. until 10:30 a.m. at Gibson's Discount Center located at Highway 109 south at South Gate Shopping Center in Thomasville. Hopefully this is the beginning of what will take place at least three times a year.

The sale is being coordinated by the Area IV Senior Citizens of North Carolina and local Parks and Recreation. Area IV includes Pilot Mountain, Lexington, Siler City, Burlington, Reidsville, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Thomasville and High Point along with the surrounding communities and counties. To be eligible to take advantage of the sale, a person must be at least 60 years old, bear a senior citizens card, or be able to show proof of age.

Senior citizens who do not have their own means of transportation are urged to contact their local senior citizens group which will make provisions to get persons to the sale.

"This event is designed to promote programs to extend the small pay checks of senior citizens," said Mrs. Minnie Payne, of the Thomasville Recreation Department. "Additionally," stated Mrs. Payne, "other programs will be forthcoming to help the elderly."

READY FOR COLD WEATHER?— Pretty Fayetteville State University freshman coed Claudette McRae braves the cold wave on the campus by wearing the popular "hot pants" outfit. Claudette, an Intermediate Education major, is a native of Fayetteville and plans to teach when she completes her education. She will have little trouble keeping the student's attention.

Cooperative Student For Coed Engineer

Veronica Caldwell, a senior majoring in electrical engineering at Howard University, put her academic knowledge into practice while working this year under Eastman Kodak Company's cooperative education program. Miss Caldwell assisted Kodak engineers with troubleshooting peripheral devices of computers, such as a teletype, card reader and magnetic tape unit. She was also involved with electrical wiring of circuit boards and engineering design work. Miss Caldwell worked at Kodak Park, Rochester, N.Y., the company's largest manufacturing complex, where photographic films, papers, and chemicals are produced. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald T. Caldwell, 2506 Rosemary Dr., Winston-Salem, N.C.

William Penn Alumni Meet For 20th Reunion At Holiday Inn Downtown

by James F. Campbell

HIGH POINT - The William Penn High School class of 1953 gleefully held its 20th reunion over the Thanksgiving weekend with about one third of the members at the Downtown Holiday Inn.

Honored during the two-day confab were Mrs. T. W. Hughes, and Mrs. Ethel P. Wilson, both voted by class members as their most inspiring teachers during their high school days.

Mr. Samuel E. Burford was honored for his leadership as titular head to the school and class and also brought greetings. Included in his remarks to dinners of incidents and events, sometimes not always positive, which he termed as aids to his own growth and development. "I'm proud you are here," he said, adding, "it is always encouraging to know that you are thinking of home."

SAMUEL E. BURFORD

The venerable former principal expressed appreciation to the class for their loyalty to the school and encouraged them to do it again soon.

Classmembers came from as far away as Chicago, Washington, D. C., and Charlotte, N.C. Wellwishes and financial support came from New York, New Jersey, and Washington, D.C. from members who were not able to attend.

UNICEF Card Designed By Black Woman

IN THIS year's collection of UNICEF Greeting Cards, probably the single design which most graphically symbolizes the objectives of the United Nations Children's Fund is the poignant "Mother and Child" by distinguished American-born black artist Elizabeth Catlett, now head of the Sculpture Department of the University of Mexico's Fine Arts School.

The strikingly simple black-and-white lithograph of a loving mother cradling her infant child is also representative of Miss Catlett's humanitarian and artistic concern for and identity with the lives and aspirations of the people of the Black and Third Worlds, particularly the women.

A NATIVE of Washington, D.C., who graduated from Howard University and earned a Master's in Fine Arts at Iowa University where she studied with Grant Wood, Betty Catlett first received public recognition by winning first prize for sculpture at the 1940 American Negro Exposition in Chicago. Recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1946, she traveled to Mexico for study and work. She is married to Mexican artist Francisco Mora and is now a citizen of that country. Recent exhibitions of her sculptures and lithographs in this country have included one-man shows at the Atlanta Center for Black Art, the Studio Museum in Harlem, and Howard University.

PROCEEDS of the sale of "Mother and Child," as of all UNICEF Cards, will help the United Nations Children's Fund to broaden its child care work in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East. They are available at $2 for a box of 12 - without any message or imprinted with the word Peace in the five official United Nations languages - from your local UNICEF Card representative or direct from the U.S. Committee for UNICEF, P.O. Box 5050, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017.

UNICEF Cards are available in Norfolk at Park Place United Methodist Church, 500 W. 34th Street, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday thru Friday.

It's Back To The Soil For Economy

Who says that young people are not concerned about rising food prices? Home Economics students at Bennett College decided to cultivate their own vegetable garden.

The project was such a success, they decided to sell the surplus vegetables in the community with proceeds going toward the improvement of the campus Home Management House.
