Jewish Secretary's of State, and "Catholic liberals" could not be happy or secure. I was aware of the disparity between this man and my 15 month old son, who knows nothing of fear, hate, and racial differences. And I wondered. I wondered what happens in twenty-three short years. What process is involved in the creation of such bitterness. I found myself trying to think of explanations but none were profound or complete enough to explain how someone chooses to be bitter, elects to dedicate his life to hate, and decides to expend energy so destructively.

While trying to analyze this man so I could make some sense of him - I wondered how another man, a Martin Luther King, would respond. King's strength was in his uncompromising care for others, his ability to love people and at the same time tell them they were wrong. I supposed that he would love a Grand Dragon while maintaining the "wrongness" of such an uncaring, scared, chaotic stance.

What particularly unsettles my thinking is that in the last several weeks I've met a number of young men who seem quite like the "Dragon". They are intelligent, articulate, successful. They are bitter, cynical and suspicious. They are politically involved. They seek to undo much of the caring legislation of recent years. I wonder if this is a significant trend.

As you see, my questions do not have easy answers. My questions seek to raise my own consciousness and yours. My questions cause me to challenge my own attitudes and I hope, yours.

There is some discomfort for those of us who have chosen political action in reconciling all this. I do seek to discover (in order of respond) to the needs of a diverse group. Yet I have my own integrity and person-hood to maintain. Communicating care with support is easy. Communicating care when you can not support is difficult. Communicating care when you want to win (which means defeating someone else) is an even greater task. This is a task that I take seriously; it is challenge which I will continue to deal with.

IRS OFFERS REFUNDS

Greensboro -The Internal Revenue Service is getting ready to issue some 60 million tax refunds to Americans. The problem is to get taxpayers started early enough to file for these refunds.

"Early enough," says Charles O. DeWitt, District Director of Internal Revenue for North Carolina, means January. This year taxpayers who file in January should get their refunds in four to six weeks. After January, they'll probably have to wait eight to ten weeks."

The reason for the delay in issuing refunds to late filers, DeWitt explains, is that most taxpayers tend to put off doing their tax returns, with the result that work piles up at the service center where they are processed.

"It stands to reason," DeWitt points out, "that our Memphis Service Center can process returns and approve refunds much faster when workloads are light -- as in January. It would be a good idea for anyone who would like an early refund to start getting his records together now."

Even taxpayers who are still waiting for their W-2 forms or perhaps their interest or mortgage statements from their bank ought to start getting their other records together now so that they can file as soon as the documents arrive, DeWitt advises.

"It's your money," he says. "The law says you're entitled to it now, so why wait? Get your refund as soon as you can."

With bills for Christmas gifts arriving, many taxpayers agree. Interest on charge accounts add up, but the money the IRS holds earns none.

In urging taxpayers to file in January, DeWitt refutes the common but erroneous belief that early returns are scrutinized more closely at IRS service centers because there is more time to devote to each individual return. This line of thinking, DeWitt says, leads these same taxpayers to conclude incorrectly that early returns are more likely to be audited by the IRS than later ones.

"This just isn't so," says DeWitt. "No matter when you file your return - Jan. 1, March 11, April 15 - your return undergoes the same processing at our service centers. We hire thousands of temporary employees each filing season and we train them to process all returns the same way."

DeWitt also explains that, in auditing returns, the IRS now uses what it calls a "Discriminant Function" (DIF) program to select returns for examination. Through the use of computers, all individual returns are classified by the same procedures. Mathematical formulas are used to rank returns by error potential.

"Many taxpayers who wait until late March or April fail to read the instructions completely - or they make an error in arithmetic."

FRED GUIDRY'S THREE SONS WILL EARN MORE IN 1973 THAN HE HAS EARNED FOR 200 YEARS.

It's not unusual to find three college graduates in the same American family. Unless it's a family from Opelousas, Louisiana, right in the center of rural black America.

Fred Guidry has been a sawmill worker since 1933, earning at most $2400 a year. He's locked in a 200-year-old cycle of poverty, ignorance and prejudice that seems almost unbreakable.

But his sons broke out. For openers, James, Fred and Larry graduated from Xavier University, New Orleans, in '68, '69 and '72.

After a year with IBM, James joined the Los Alamos Project, earned an M.S. in Computer Sciences and is now at Carnegie Mellon studying Urban Affairs.

Fred researches solar physics at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center.

Larry will return to his Ph.D. studies in chemistry at the University of Pittsburgh after completing his hitch with Uncle Sam.

Fred Guidry's three sons have an earning potential he only dreamed of. But they might never have made it without the United Negro College Fund.

We support Xavier and 39 other private colleges that help 45,000 students break out of the rural backwaters and urban ghettos of this country and into 20th century America.

We know there's a place for them. We know we can help them find it. All we need is money. Yours.

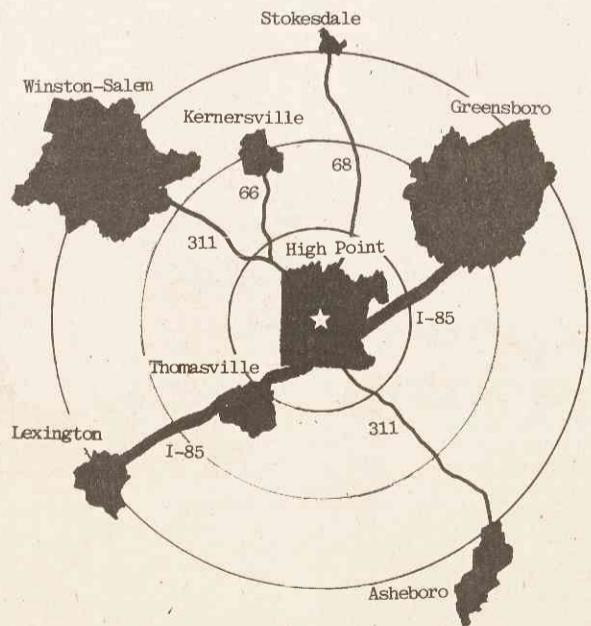

A Mind is a Terrible Thing to Waste.
