NEW POLICY FOR MEETINGS AT LIBRARY

A new policy setting requirements and regulations for public meetings at High Point Public Library has been approved by the library board of trustees.

The new policy clarifies who may use the library meeting room, for what purposes, and outlines responsibilities of users in regard to the library and the public. The agreement must be signed by a representative of a scheduling group before use of the room.

According to the board's policy statement, the library provides its meeting room for groups, agencies and organizations as a service to the community. The policy states:

"Any meeting held in the library must be for purposes consistent with the general objectives and goals of the library. These include the communication of ideas, promotion of an enlightened citizenry, enrichment of personal life and the general support of educational, cultural and civic activities of the community."

Because a group is permitted to meet at the public library does not mean endorsement by the library of the group's beliefs, policies or programs, the policy says.

Some of the criteria redefined in the new policy are: The room may not be used for sectarian or denominational religious programs, nor for partisan political purposes.

Commercial groups, including businesses, may schedule meetings at the library, but not for commercial purposes.

An admission fee may not be charged, nor can donations or other funds be solicited by any group.

The library reserves the right to see handout literature, exhibits, and press releases.

No meeting may be held which exclude the press. Upon adequate notice and for adequate reasons, the library may also revoke permission to use its meeting room.

The new policy also includes a provision for payment for any damage to library property.

"The new policy will make it easier for groups to understand whether or not they may use the library for meeting," Director Neal Austin said. "A clarification of responsibilities better serves the organization, the library and the public," he said.

School Personnel Changes Announced In Greensboro

GREENSBORO - AT a recent meeting, the Greensboro City Board of Education transferred two persons to supervisory positions which had been vacant for a year, and named nine persons to new assignments as principals. They include replacements for three retirees -- Charles Herbert, Mendenhall Junior High School; Helen Medlin, Claxton; and Juliet Tuck, Melver.

Mack Baker, principal of Aycock Junior High School since 1970, was appointed science supervisor for grades K through 12 for Greensboro Public Schools. Baker holds an A.B. in biology from Guilford College, and a master's degree in education from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. He was a science teacher at Kiser Junior High, 1958-67, and served as assistant principal there, 1967-70.

Carl O. Foster, principal of Price School since 1971, was selected as a choral music supervisor for the city schools. Foster has a bachelor's degree in music, and a master's in educational administration from A&T State University. He was a music supervisor in Concord 1948-57, taught music at Gibsonville, 1957-58, and as a sixth grade teacher at Jonesboro School here 1958-67, he directed the school's music program. He became principal of Jonesboro in 1967, and was transferred to Price in 1971.

Nine new principalships were announced by the board. They are:

C. Howard King to be principal at Aycock Junior High School, replacing Baker. King holds the B.S. from Davidson College, and the M.Ed. from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. He was a teacher and coach at Aycock, 1956-63, and assistant principal there, 1963-67. He has been assistant principal at Mendenhall Junior High since 1967.

James C. Hill to be principal at Price Elementary School.

National Black Network Celebrates 1st Birthday; Expansion Planned

NEW YORK - On July 2, 1973, the National Black Network opened its doors and began broadcasting Black news to America. The principles of NBN assembled a staff of some 30 professionals in the exacting fields of broadcast journalism, sales, engineering, corporate administration and public relations. The mix was perfect. In one year the nucleus grew considerably, and today, the National Black Network is a familiar name in millions of Black households throughout the United States and boasts 68 affiliated stations coast to coast.

NBN recently expanded its broadcast day to 21 hours and at present employs over fifty people in its New York headquarters.

Programming has evolved dramatically from a basic five minute newscast on the hour to include a weekly 30 minute news forum show, "Black Issues & the Black Press", a regular sports show, and public service programming. Shortly, a weekly entertainment program will be offered to advertisers.

Black programming, in addition to serving the needs of the Black community also serves the needs of the many White listeners to Black radio, and it is precisely through the addition of Black news that the real National news picture can be fully comprehended.

Among the sponsors who made it possible for NBN to bring Black news to Americans during its first year were: Sears, Roebuck and Company, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, J. C. Penny Company, Johnson Products, Capital Records, Inc., AT&T, Eastman Kodak Company, Kraft Foods, General Foods, S. C. Johnson and Son, Inc., Bristol Myers, American Motors, Ford Motor Company, American Home Products, Colgate-Palmolive, Sterling Drug Company, The Gillette Com-

New Black Show To Begin July 15

NEW YORK - "I think when the criminal element of our communities becomes so bad and brazen that Black people are no longer safe on the streets of their segregated communities or even in their homes, it is time to rally decent, self respecting Black people together for united, nationwide action against Black on Black crime." That's Roy Wood saying it on, "One Black Man's Opinion."

"One Man's Opinion" is a series of commentaries by Wood, broadcast five times a week beginning July 15.

In his long career, Wood has been a staff announcer with WIBC Indianapolis, and served as Program Director and Personality Disc Jockey for KATZ Radio in St. Louis, Mo. In fact, Wood was the first person to be heard on KATZ when it was born in
