WHO WILL REPLACE BARBEE

A TRIBUNAL AID EDITORIAL

By Albert A. Campbell

necessarily characterize that person as the best suited for the position.

Additionally, Mrs. Barbee was elected for various reasons and those same reasons must be employed in selecting her successor. Number one, she was Black, and that should be given first consideration. Number two, she was the first woman, and that should be high on the priority list. The voters showed by their overwhelming vote that they wanted a woman, and they should not be denied their wishes. Number three, she was concerned. Concerned about the people. Her compassion for her fellowman was her outstanding attribute, and that factor should not be lost in the shuffle.

Hopefully, the County Commissioners will weigh all of these factors and seek to find them wherever possible. Certainly finding a duplicate of Mrs. Barbee is next to impossible, but ignoring the needs and wishes of the people of this county is unacceptable. Political pay-offs cannot be deployed at this time, and tapping a friend will not be tolerated by the people of this county. Some are already saying that the actions of this occasion will determine their future voting conduct.

Now, although the factors mentioned above should be heavily weighed, this newspaper wishes to make it clear that the choice should come from the entire community of Guilford County. Greensboro should not be the only location considered. The commissioners should not close their eyes to High Point, and Rural Guilford.

Lastly, the Blacks of this county would like to see a true representative of the Black community, and not a "smiley". After all, Mrs. Barbee was elected and she was a producer, and we, the Black community, want no less.

N. C. Human Resources Department

The Department of Human Resources will be using an extensive telephone "book" on January 2nd. The "book" offers reliable information concerning human services in North Carolina.

The Department's new information and Referral system will offer a toll-free number for citizens to call for information concerning service resources which are available in their community and the state. Data on the human service resources which are available in their community and the state. Data on the human services has been computer-programmed and will be available by way of a data tool called a microfiche. The toll-free number 1-800-662-7030, Monday through Friday initially. The system has the capability of 24-hour operation.

"We know there are a lot of services people don't know about," said J.S. "Pete" Grimes, Director of the Information and Referral System. "Our system will have information on public and private agencies and we'll be able to answer questions or make referrals almost immediately. We'll have data on everything from Boy Scout programs to mental health facilities to social services." The system will have 12,000 agencies and 30,000 services cataloged.

The system is not aimed at performing a crisis counseling service, however there is a bridging capability. "Sometimes we may need to put a caller directly in contact with a service agency. Through the bridging capability we can put the caller together with the agency -- then we fade out since our part of the transaction would be complete," Grimes said.

According to Grimes only one other state, Georgia, has a system similar in scope to North Carolina's.

While the information and referral system is primarily aimed at providing a service for citizens, the Department of Human Resources expects an internal benefit. "We will be able to find out a lot about the delivery of services in North Carolina," said Secretary David Flaherty. "We can identify unmet needs from the requests which indicate no resources exist, or we can find if there is duplication or overlapping of programs," he pointed out. Flaherty said such data would be cataloged in the computer then utilized in planning Department programs and shared with private agencies involved in human services.

The service is available to all citizens in the state and callers' anonymity will be protected if requested.

Extensive Plans In Atlanta

King's Birthday To Be Observed 4 Days

ATLANTA, GA. — The 46th Birthday Anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., will be observed in January with four days of activities in his home city of Atlanta, including a Conference on saving one of the greatest achievements of the movement Dr. King led — the Voting Rights Act.

At the same time, communities across the nation will be holding services, celebrations and other activities honoring the slain civil rights leader on his birthday January 15.

THE EVENTS in Atlanta, announced by The Martin Luther King, Jr. Center for Social Change, are as follows:

January 12: "Martin Luther King Sunday," with church services throughout the city emphasizing Dr. King's life and teachings, and receiving offerings for the continuation of his work through The Center.

JANUARY 13: The Southern Policy Conference on the Voting Rights Act. This law, which helped to revolutionize politics and race relations in the South, was passed by Congress in 1965 as the direct result of the mass movement for voting rights which began in Selma, Ala. The Act is due to expire in 1975.

The Conference, called by The King Center, will be held at Ebenezer Baptist Church where Dr. King was co-pastor with his father. Movement leaders (Civil Rights and Labor) and key members of Congress will be featured in discussions on continuing voting problems for Black people in the South and strategy for renewal of the Act in 1975.

White Not Always Right In Job Arena

WASHINGTON — Recent complaints of "reverse discrimination" against white men "reveal a peculiarly ingrained type of prejudice," National Education Association President James A. Harris charged, adding that some people "simply can't bring themselves to believe that white males aren't always 'more qualified.'"

Harris made the charge in the wake of an announcement by Peter E. Holmes, director of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare's Office of Civil Rights, concerning college employment practices. Holmes indicated that federal affirmative action guidelines were being widely misinterpreted — there is no requirement that less-qualified women and minority group members be hired over white males, he said.

HOLMES' announcement came after several dozen prominent university professors complained to President Ford that the federal government's affirmative action program is "unjust and discriminatory."

Harris pointed out that NEA has never been under the impression that college affirmative action programs called for a drop in employee quality. "On the contrary," he said, "fully qualified women and minorities have been systematically excluded from top faculty jobs while preference was given to white males."

IF WOMEN or minorities win top jobs, some people assume that standards must have been lowered, Harris commented.

The NEA leader warned that "we must not allow the HEW statement to be used as a new defense for the old bigoted thinking."
