Soul Train's Coming Attraction

Singer-guitarist Jose Feliciano, who needs no introduction to musical fans around the world, will headline this week's Soul Train lineup. The nationally syndicated, weekly televised dance show will also feature vocalist Minnie Riperton and the Dynamic Superiors, a new singing group from Washington, D.C.

Singing his latest single, Stevie Wonder's "Golden Lady," "Hard Times in El Barrio" and "California Dreamin'," Jose entertains in the distinctive fashion that brought him fame and fortune with his electrifying rendition of "Light My Fire," his first of 31 gold albums.

Jose recently scored the theme song for the NBC television series "Chico and the Man" and was seen last month on that network's "McMillan and Wife". He is soon scheduled to guest star on "Kung Fu," adding to his laurels as recording artist, performer, songwriter and scorer.

Chicago-born Minnie Riperton, with a voice range that spans five octaves, will perform "Loving You" and "Reasons." Like many other Black singers, Minnie first soloed in church but, unlike the majority, she also studied opera which aided her vocal development and broadened her style.

The Dynamic Superiors, five young men from the nation's capital, make their Soul Train debut with "Shoe-Shoe Shine." Composed of brothers Tony and Maurice Washington, George Wesley Peterbark, Jr., George Spann and Michael McCalpin, they bring together a polished blend of precision vocalizing and choreography.

Soul Train, produced and hosted by Don Cornelius.
