ASK ME ABOUT NATURE

by Doris B. Kwastka

Dear Mrs. K: I read in your column that some turtles and birds live longer than man. I want to know what is the oldest living thing.

Mrs. H. Mosby

Dear Mrs. Mosby: The oldest living things is the bristlecone pine in the White Mountain of California. There are seventeen of these pines which are from 4,000 to 4,600 years old.

Dear Mrs. K: If you catch a fish in a frozen river, will it live?

Tommy J.

Dear Tommy: A fish caught in a frozen river will live if its body is not frozen solid.

Dear Mrs. K: How much do pineapples weigh?

Mr. Wiley

Dear Mr. Wiley: The pineapple may weigh from three to twenty pounds.

Dear Mrs. K: Can a glass catfish be broken like glass?

John P.

Dear John: The glass catfish cannot be broken like glass. It is called glass catfish because of its camouflage nature. Only its bones, eyes and internal organs can be seen in the water. The rest of its body appears as glass.

Dear Mrs. K: Can animals eat stone cactuses?

Jennifer

Dear Jennifer: Stone cactuses grow close to the ground and look like stones, but they may be eaten as any other cactus plants. Animals avoid eating them because they look like stones and no animal would try to eat a stone.

Dear Mrs. K: Is it true that birds feed their babies over fifty meals a day?

Sally R.

Dear Sally: Some mother birds feed their babies over a thousand meals in a single day. One wren fed her babies 1,214 meals in a single day.

There are so many things to learn about Nature. People want answers but sometimes are afraid to ask. Well, don't be.

Just put your questions in an envelope or on a post card and mail it to me in care of this newspaper. (The Tribunal Aid, P.O. Box 921, High Point, N.C. 27261) and I will answer it in this column. Be sure to include your name and address. If you do not wish your name to be included when your letter is printed, indicate it in your letter. Keep your letters coming.

WSSU Students Named To Who's Who

WINSTON-SALEM—Thirty-four Winston-Salem State University students have been approved for listing in the 1975-76 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges".

Students are selected on the basis of their academic and extra-curricular achievement and for their contributions and service to school and community. Dr. Frank A. Rose, former president of the University of Alabama has stated that the Who's Who Award has evolved as a recognized institution which honors students destined to become tomorrow's leaders.

NEW P. E. DEMONSTRATION SCHOOL NAMED

RALEIGH—Lexington Middle School in Lexington has been named a Physical Education Demonstration Center for the 1975-76 school year. The eighth demonstration center in the State, the school will retain the title for three years.

The school qualified for the title because of its model physical education program, offering exemplary facilities and instruction in physical education. The Demonstration Center Project is jointly sponsored by the Department of Public Instruction's Division of Health and Physical Education and the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

Visitation at the demonstration centers begins in December and runs through May each year. Over 4,000 educators from school units throughout the State have visited the model sites since the project began four years ago.

A&T Nursing Students Win Awards

GREENSBORO—Five nursing students at A&T State University Sunday, October 12, became the recipients of the prestigious Air Force ROTC two-year nursing scholarships.

They thus became the first A&T nursing students to win the awards which are granted on a national basis after screening by the Air Force ROTC Central Selection Board at Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama.

This year 30 of the two-year nursing scholarships were awarded to 22 different colleges. A&T won five of the awards, more than any other single institution.

Winners of the scholarship...

"We are extremely pleased that these students have been selected for these scholarships," said Mrs. Naomi Winn, dean of the A&T Nursing School. "It is an honor and should serve as an inspiration for the other students."
