A RIDDLE IN RHYMES

by Rev. T. M. Walker

WHAT AM I?

They pluck me seasonally and load me on trucks To deliver me to where I am needed: They price me reasonably putting my buyers in luck, Especially after I am well seeded.

With my intestines removed, and I'm hollow within, And I'm given a mouth, nose, and eyes It makes me interestingly used by those who may win Some type of prize if they should try. WHAT AM I?

I am rounded out, and yet I'm somewhat creased By nature's grooving artist. When I'm carried about and finally released, I just shine as if I am polished.

I am no lantern, and yet my name is Jack; Still that's what I'm called when up high, Glaring at random upon crowds around me packed As children in the party pass by. WHAT AM I?

I'm first green on the vine, and then I turn yellow, And besides that I am very dumb; Yet it seems to all that I am a popular fellow, For at least I am nobody's bum.

There can be a lesson around me centered; I can be a means to inspire Hope for those of supression who may have entered Defeatism and slow death beside. WHAT AM I?

One lesson I teach by just being my yellow self Is that whether you are white or yellow There is a positive glow you can radiate from a shelf, Proving that one can shine for the other fellow.

So now as you grow within your own human setting, Ripening to be plucked by and by, Try never to sow the bad seeds of fretting When you can give a lantern smile. WHAT AM I?

(The answer to last week's riddle is MIRROR. (This riddle will be answered in the next issue of THE TRIBUNAL AID.

Smith; this improve last year's 4-7 team is the best Ray McDougal has had during his six years as chief mentor, and their record proved it.

He had a host of seniors, among them All-American track and football great James Godwin, who put a 7-3 season together this year and made it the best record on paper at Fayetteville State (N.C.) University.

The team lost three heart-breakers and could have easily gone undefeated for the season.

soured economy, Nathaniel consistently meets his assigned quota and fulfills his protection obligation.

Nathaniel has the desire to oneday become an instructor at the instructional headquarters for IBM in Dallas, Texas, and eventually become an upper level manager.

At the present time though, the IBM salesman must persist in handling his duties of working with professional businesses in over 75% of High Point, along with GTI and all of its campuses. This entails not only selling office equipment and office systems, but also calls for advising and counseling on better office techniques and operation, counseling on equipment to improve office operations, and the setting of methods for handling special applications such as orders for manufacturers of products, billing, and storage of records for the products ordered.

Nathaniel's largest customers thus far are the High Point City Schools, Adams-Mills, and Alderman Studios.

At present, Nathaniel resides at 3240-H South Holden Road in Greensboro with his wife Deborah. They have no children.

His story should be known, for it exemplifies that determination, fortitude and good fortune can bring success for the Black race, and we definitely are over-do for that.

Shaw Basketball Team Is CIAA "Sleeper"

RALEIGH, N.C.- Shaw University head basketball coach James Farris describes his team as the "sleeper" of the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association (CIAA). Farris, beginning his third year as basketball coach believes he finally has a team capable of winning, despite his two year record of 14 wins and 34 losses.

For the first time in several years the Bears will play the majority of their games on campus in Spaulding Gymnasium which will give the Bears a home court advantage. The home court advantage is usually good for 8 or 10 extra points in a tight game. The Bears lost several key games by less than eight points last season. The Bears will play three games at Ligon Junior High School Gym including the opener against Winston-Salem State University on Tuesday, December 2 at 8 p.m.

The Bears were hit hard last season when several starters were unable to play because of academic problems. However, that problem has been solved and Farris is blessed to have 9 seasoned players on

Greensboro Prepares For MEAC

GREENSBORO, N.C. - Marvin "Human Eraser" Webster is gone from the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, but the MEAC still expects the 1975-76 basketball season to be a thriller.

So much so until coaches in the league are already pointing to the MEAC's annual basketball tournament, scheduled for next February 26-28 in the 15,000-seat Greensboro Coliseum.

The MEAC coaches held their annual kickoff press conference in the coliseum last Monday and immediately picked North Carolina A&T as the team to beat in the conference race. Dr. James Younge, acting commissioner of the MEAC, announced that tickets for the MEAC tournament will go on sale Dec. 1 in the coliseum.

He said the advance sale will include only season books at $18.00 for premium seats and $14.00 for side court seats. Persons ordering tickets are asked to add fifty cents for handling charges.

"With the kind of teams we are expecting in the conference this season," said Younge, "we are expecting upwards of 25,000 fans to attend our tournament."

In addition to the Aggies, the conference race is expected to feature outstanding teams by Howard University, S.C. State College, North Carolina his thirteen man squad.

Farris describes forward guard Andrew Richardson as the team leader. Richardson, an all CIAA candidate (1973-74), is fast and has a deadly outside shot. During the 1973-74 season Richardson had a 21.3 game average and is expected to be one of the CIAA's leading scorers.

Farris will open up with 6-10 Jake Rodgers at center. Rodgers is the tallest player in the CIAA, however he lacks weight and experience. Rodgers is a graduate of Broughton High School, but he didn't play any high school ball. In addition, he only weighs 190 pounds.

Other stand outs include 6-6 Tommie Johnson and 6-5 Larry Hicks, a transfer student from Kittrell College.

Joe Moye, a 6-2 guard was the only member of the 1974-75 squad to be named to the All CIAA squad. "Moye has all tools to be one of the most outstanding players in the country", Farris said. He averaged 22 points per game last season and is considered one of the Bears most consistent players.

Central, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, Delaware State College and Morgan State College.

"This is an outstanding basketball league," said Warren Reynolds, head coach of the Aggies. "We have a lot of topnotch players and coaches and anybody can win the title." Tickets for the tournament may be ordered from: The Greensboro Coliseum, 1921 W. Lee Street, Greensboro, N.C.

"Our main goal right now is to make it to win some games and make it to the CIAA tourney in Hampton," said Farris. We have three conference games before Christmas and if we can win at least two of them I believe we could be in good shape for the remainder of the year. Farris said he intends for the team to be more aggressive than last year and he is hoping he can develop a stronger defense

Farris will share the coaching duties with Bobby Sanders, a Shaw graduate and basketball coach at East Garner Jr. High School and Cliff Anderson, a former player with the Los Angeles Lakers.
