Rev. Mr. Cleland Preaches Able Sermon at Bethel

Sermon 11 a.m., Sunday, April 12th. Theme: "The Day of Judgment."

It would be hard to find a rational person, who has not given some thought concerning life in this world. Life here is of a probationary nature. There is a future life towards which all of us are tending. Freedom simply means that he has

REV. W. C. CLELAND.

Pastor of Bethel A. M. E. Church, North Regan Street.

I. Man is a free moral being. This is the privilege of making a choice. This freedom brings man within the scope of moral law.

Where there is law there is accountability.

II. It is set forth in the Scripture that there will be a day of judgment. The idea of reckoning is in the very nature of man. At some time all of us must give account for what we have done. The decision will rest upon the opportunity we have had.

III. We have this consolation: That we shall go before a just judge. In the affairs of men justice is often miscarried. Jesus Christ is the advocate for all, who believe in him.

Our acceptance or rejection of Jesus Christ will determine the decision of the impartial judge.

Police Make Search For Pair for Theft

General W. Haynes, Negro, 257 West Whittington street, and police today were seeking an unidentified Negro man and woman who allegedly posed as healers and film flamed Haynes out of $65 in money and left their victim in no better physical condition.

Police said their information was that a negro posing as a priest went to Haynes' home Thursday and proposed to cure him of a minor physical ailment.

Haynes paid $2 to the alleged impostor, who was to return the next day for the first installment of "divine healing," police said they were told.

Haynes never saw the man again, but the next day a young Negro woman came to Haynes' home and on his lap was pinned a flower, which was supposed to possess miraculous healing powers.

Saturday the same woman returned to remove the flower, and in so doing $60 in money which was pinned about Haynes' shirt stuck to her hands.

A. and T. Keys Program For Defense

Has Readjusted Curricula To Meet National Needs

Ever conscious of the change in demands of the community, state and country with the times, A. and T. College, Greensboro, which has played an important part in the preparation of youth for useful citizenship for 51 years, has recently readjusted her curricula to meet the needs of a nation which is faced with the herculean task of defending the principles of democracy.

This defense calls for the most fully equipped persons in all fields vital to it, and the colleges and universities of the country are held largely responsible in seeing that all shortages of such persons are eliminated by an increased output.

A. and T. college will answer the challenge for an increased output by accelerating the educational program, thus releasing more technicians, skilled artisans and educational program, thus releasing more technicians, skilled artisans, and educational leaders at shorter intervals. A student who would ordinarily graduate in four years may now, through attending college during the summer, graduate in three years.

With the growth in dominance of the technical aspect in modern day civilization, there has been a rapid shift of college students from the other departments to the technical department. The various divisions of this department are taxed to the limit by the outpouring of persons who seek technical training. Prof. J. M. Martens, dean of the technical department, disclosed recently that all seniors in his department have jobs waiting for them on their graduation.

The technical department or school of mechanic arts offers courses leading to the bachelor of science degree in architectural engineering, business administration, commercial education, commercial industries and trade teachers, electrical engineering, fine arts, industrial arts and mechanical engineering. Extensive offering in mathematics and physics are also made for students. The vocational courses which are offered, and which lead to certificates are auto mechanics, carpentry, cabinet making and upholstery, shoe repairing and leatherwork, tailoring, machine shop practice, masonry, laundry management, secretarial science, and plumbing and steam fitting.

Under the supervision of the school of mechanics, the college has offered such defense courses as airplane and engine mechanics, materials testing and inspection and radio communications. The radio communications courses are now being offered at the college, which is the only Negro institution in the state offering them on the college level. A. and T. is also sponsoring these courses in Raleigh and Durham, and is attempting to establish them in Asheville and Winston-Salem.

The demand for proficient typists today is great, and A. and T. college is now offering intensive courses in typing and stenography to qualify students immediately for the increasing number of civil service positions.

The agricultural department is conducting victory garden campaigns throughout Greensboro and the state. Community gardens, sponsored by various victory garden clubs, are supervised by members of the A. and T. college faculty, who give lectures and demonstrations to club members.

Dr. C. M. Hill, head of the chemistry department, has for some time been conducting experiments in an attempt to discover a suitable rubber substitute. He announced recently that he expects such a product in the very near future.

GOOD MEASURE.

An Irishman passed a shop which advertised "Everything Sold by the Yard." Thinking to play a joke on the shop-keeper, the Irishman went in and asked for a Yard of milk. The shop-keeper, not to be outdone, dipped his finger in a bowl of milk and drew a line a yard long on the counter "Five cents, please," he said. "All right," the Irishman came back, "roll it up and I'll take it!"

Negro C. of C. Is Formed At Charlotte

Smith University Hopes To Improve Community Life

CHARLOTTE, April 15.—In an effort to improve the community life among Negroes Johnson C. Smith university through some of its faculty members has organized a Charlotte Negro chamber of commerce.

This organization is composed of all Negroes who are interested in the improvement of community life among Negroes in the city of Charlotte. Men and women who are engaged in business and professional life of the city constitutes the majority of the membership in this organization. However, there are auxiliary organizations composed of the chauffeurs, maids, restaurant owners, grocery owners and other types of businesses operating in the city.

Through the chamber an effort is made to bring to the attention of the various persons engaged in business and commerce latest information bearing upon their particular fields of endeavor. Through the co-operation of members of the faculty a very excellent Negro directory was printed and distributed. The 1942 directory is now being compiled which will offer many improvements over the one last year in that it will have listed the various skilled Negro workers. All carpenters, plasterers, mechanics, etc., will be listed together in a separate part of the directory.

The university through the chamber of commerce has done much to bring to a high level and build a more wholesome community relationship between the school and the people of the community. This effort promises to be one of the greatest contributions the school has made toward helping improve the lives of Negroes in recent years.

Wilson Police Hunt Wild Dog

WILSON, April 16.—A giant "wolf-like" police dog that apparently puts the "Hound of the Baskervilles" to shame in appearance and which has killed a number of hogs and dogs in the country club section near here in the last few weeks was being hunted yesterday by a posse of men armed with shotguns, rifles and even sub-machine guns as the office of Sheriff W. A. Weathersby joined in the search.

Those who have seen the "killer" hound from a distance in the last few weeks describe it as "a giant wolflike animal whose shoulders are some 2 feet, six inches from the ground."

Fearing that the mystery hound might attack small children in the neighborhood, farmers and deputies spent most of the day yesterday hunting the creature.

Newest outrage carried out by the wild police dog was the killing Saturday morning early of an Eskimo spitz owned by Lyn Newnam, professional at the Wilson country club.

Plans are being furnished in Canada to manufacture synthetic rubber from oil carried by pipeline from the United States.

A. and T. Has Prominent Speakers for Health Week

Greensboro—A. and T. College presented two main speakers in its celebration of National Negro Health Week. Mrs. Geneva C. Hunt, superintendent of the L. Richardson Memorial Hospital of this city, and C. S. Buchanan, of the municipal health department staff.

The programs were sponsored by the A. and T. Health committee, Dr. F. E. Davis, chairman.

Mrs. Hunt, who spoke on "Nursing as a Profession," declared that in nursing, one must train the mind as well as the hand. In listing the prerequisites for nurse training, she said that although college students are preferred, persons who have graduated from an accredited high school in the first one-third of the class are eligible. "Women who want to be good nurses must be conscientious, of high moral character, cultured, good conversationalists, well read and must be able to keep secrets," she said.

Mr. Buchanan, who spoke on "Conservation of Health" said, "There is no conservation of more vital importance to national defense than the conservation of health." He listed syphilis as one of the greatest menaces to health. "Many heart and brain diseases can be traced to syphilis," he said.

Mr. Buchanan revealed that of all men examined for military service, 60,000 were rejected or deferred because of venereal diseases. "In the last war many lives were lost because of this menace. This is being prevented in the present war by the health precautions taken by military and health authorities," he said.
