Dim Out Rules Ignored Here

Downtown Area Brightly Lighted

A casual glance up and down the streets of Greensboro's business area was all that was necessary Thursday night to show that co-operation with the city's new dim out rules was virtually non-existent.

Under the rules adopted by the city council Tuesday and effective s of Thursday night, all exterior lights are supposed to be out be tween 9 p. m. and 7 a. m. and all interior lights during the same hours when establishments and offices are left unattended.

But at '11 o'clock, two hours after the dim out rules are supposed to take effect and a time when normally many window display lights and electric signs have been extinguished for the night, the downtown area was electrically ablaze with signs and window lights.

Charles G. Yates, local defense co ordinator, in announcing the dim out rules, said a 10-day "education pe-riod" will be observed during which violators will be reminded of the rules after which there will be Strict enforcement.

Johnson C. Smith University Has 67th Anniversary

Celebration this year ofthe 76th anniversary of the Johnson C. Smith university, Charlotte, marked another milestone along the road of progress traveled by the Negro race in the few short years since the day of slavery. When the university, called. Biddle university, was founded 75 years ago the Negro race was at the threshold of a new life. Few among its members could read or write, trained leaders were nowhere to be had and the future presented a problem of gigantic prop

It was soon demonstrated, howe that the American Negro has an adaptability for learning. He was quick to take advantage of the opportunity to better himself that sympathtic leaders among his white brethren exended to him. Soon capable leaders tended to him Soon capable lenders among his own, race were developed and his progress took definite single. His natural thient, suthnalasm and severy, coupled with the Christian is merry, coupled with the Christian indused imparted is him by his white friends, began to solve the problems that had confronted him problems that had confronted him after signery.

Among the outstanding leaders emerging from this new ers for the emerging from this new ers for the Negro was Dr. Henry Lawrence McCrorey, the man who is now, and has been for the last 35 years president of Johnson C. Smith university.

Dr. McCrorey, born of slave-owned parents, this mother and step-owned parents, this mother and step-father being suffered littlegate. father being entirely illiterate, began tather being entirety lillterate, began his early education in a Presbyterian mission, the Willard Richardson school in Winnabore, S. C. At the age of 23 he entered the preparatory department of Biddle university in Charlotte. Eagerly and thoroughly he passed through the entire courses of the institution, having entered in its erry lowest form. In 1892 he grad-uated from the law department and immediately entered the theological school of the university, from which he graduated in 1895, Dr. McCrorey, then attended the University of Chi-cago where he specialized in Hebrew under the then famous Dr. Harper. While a student at Biddle his early influence was appeciated so much that he was appointed as an assistant instructor in the preparatory de-partment; since then his connection wit the teaching forces of the in-stitution has never been broken. It. Filling the chair of Latin in the collegiate department he was ultimately transferred to the chair of Hebrew and Greek Exegents in the theological school, On the death of President Sanders in 1907 he was elevated to the office of president, elevated to the office of president, which office he has held continuously since that time. All in all Dr. Mc. Crorey has been associated with the university or all continuous years as teacher and president.

There are hopy and griss of the Negro are expressed from the principle of the posterior of this because was born or lower parents, handles pred from the start, but should preserve and hard work and the griss of the design of the preserve and hard work and the griss of the design of the griss of the design of the griss of the griss
